COLEMAN BANK LOOT GIVES DETAILS OF

FOSS WINS BROKER'S PAROLE

The Executive Council has agreed to Governor Foss' plea for freeing Cardenas F. King, the promoter. The Governor's plea—the same one he has advocated right along—is that King shall be released from Bridgewater State Hospital on parole, with the understanding that, if he recovers his health, he shall go back to prison to serve out the balance of his term.

This agreement became known at the State House today, though it has not been officially announced.

The main conditions of King's liberty are as stated as above. Some details are yet to be arranged.

It is possible that the suggestion of Lieutenant-Governor Wallis, that King be forbidden to encourage in brokerage or promoting, will be imposed on the paroled man.

The Executive Council does not hold a regular meeting until next Wednesday, and no special meeting on the King case is planned. So no that action will be taken for a week.

On the present understanding King will be freed next Wednesday, a paroled man, as the Governor recommended.

When he is a well man again—if he ever is—he must go back to Charlestown State Prison. He will not go back to Bridgewater, for that is a hospital.

Governor Foss' attitude, as given out by an official close to the executive, is as follows:

From inquiries made into the case, the Governor has come to the conclusion that King's condition today is not radically different from what it was four years ago, and that therefore clemency is not justified on that account.

The petitioners for King's pardon make their plea on the ground that King is a dying man. The Governor has laid down the conditions regarding the parole as a means toward insuring that the State shall not be deceived in this case as the country was fooled in the case of Banker Moore, who was released by President Taft on the plea of his friends that he was dying and who shortly after his release became a well man.

W. J. Delory Gets a $1,000 Verdict in Love Damage Suit

William J. Delory of Roxbury was awarded $1,000 damages against Charles A. Eaton, a farmer, of Westwood, in the Norfolk Superior Court at Dedham, for the alienation of the affections of Delory's wife Mrs. Ann Delory. The husband sued for $25,000.

The case has been on trial for three days. It went to the jury yesterday at noon and a verdict was reached last night at 8 o'clock. It was sealed and presented to the court today.

On the stand Eaton admitted taking Mrs. Delory riding about four times. He said they had gone to the theatre together and had gone to Nantasket Beach. Mrs. Delory testified against Eaton, saying that he had taken her buggy riding and had invited her. She nevertheless accepted an other invitation ten days later.

Eaton was at one time engaged to marry Margaret Keamey, sister of Mrs. Delory. The engagement was broken and a suit for breach of promise resulting did not reach trial. It was during his engagement to the sister that he met Mrs. Delory.

200 ON FERRYBOAT IN PANIC AS LINER JUST MISSES CRAFT

Two hundred passengers aboard the ferry boat General Hancock of the North ferry line to East Boston were thrown into a state of panic today as they saw the gleaming bow of the 8,000-ton freight liner Francisco, from Hull, England, bearing down upon them.

The quick and able seamanship of Pilot Clarence A. Martin in the wheelhouse of the liner prevented the big steamer from crashing into the ferryboat and causing a loss of life. The Francisco passed the stern of the Hancock by a few feet.

Those who witnessed the narrow escape on the harbor craft declared that the captain of the ferryboat did not heed the whistle for the right of way signalled by the liner.

In preventing the collision the liner Francisco narrowly missed hitting the seawall that surrounds the Charlestown Navy Yard.

TAFT NOMINATIONS AGAIN TAKEN UP IN EXECUTIVE SESSION

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—By a vote of 36 to 34, two Progressives voting with the Democrats, the Senate today went into executive session to fight out again the question of the Taft appointments.

The motion for the executive session was made by Senator Lodge of Massachusetts. The two Progressives who voted with the Democrats were Bristow of Kansas and Poindexter of Washington.

Prior to the vote the Republican Senators held a caucus and decided to continue the fight. "We will fight it out on this line if it takes all session," said the leader.

WALDO REMOVES POLICE LIEUTANT IN GRAFT INQUIRY

NEW YORK, Feb. 6.—Police Commissioner Waldo today suspended Captain Thomas W. Walsh from the police force.

Through his confession of graft, made to District Attorney Whitman, which he later refused to the Grand Jury, indictments will be sought against a police inspector and others as graft takers on a large scale.

If obtained, these indictments would be the most important developments in the exposure of the "system" since the city was aroused to the alliance of its police with gambling and vice by the murder of a "squealing" gambler at the institution of Police Inspector Charles Becker last July.

Walsh's confession was made on his sick bed.

WOMEN GIVE 12,500 APPLES TO CHILDREN

CHICAGO, Feb. 6.—Club women distributed 12,500 apples among the school children of ten Chicago schools today as an advance feature of the apple bargain sales that are to be conducted Friday and Saturday through the agency of hundreds of grocers. Twenty thousand barrels of apples are to be sold.

"AUNT DELIA" NOW IN THE WHITE HOUSE

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—"Aunt Delia" Torrey arrived at the White House today to pay her last visit to her nephew, President Taft, in the executive mansion. Miss Torrey is expected to remain here until March 4.

NEW PEACE MOVE FOR STRIKERS

Three additional firms made overtures to the striking garment workers today for a settlement that would enable their operatives to return to work at the hours, wages and working conditions demanded by the union.

Four hundred operatives are employed at these establishments, who will return to work immediately the actual settlements are effected. This would make twenty shops in all, employing 1,350 operatives signed up since the general strike was called Sunday morning, leaving 4,000 still out.

A member of the State Board of Conciliation and Arbitration stated today that he had made an informal report to Governor Foss on the strike situation, and that the Governor was watching the progress of the strike closely with a view to ultimate interference, if necessary.

He also stated that the board itself was doing all in its power to bring about a settlement. He said:

The board has been investigating this matter, and from my observations I may state that the outlook for an early settlement is bright. The two parties to the controversy are getting together. There board is encouraging them to confer. It is possible that an early adjustment of their differences will be accomplished.

The board does not intend to take any decisive action for several days, at least, unless it becomes evident that the parties will not meet each other half way.

Ettor to Take a Hand.

Joseph Ettor and Arturo Giovannitti, I. W. W. leaders, are coming to Boston to take part in the garment workers strike. They are coming here at the request of the Boston Raincoat Makers' Union, which claims to have one thousand members, and is not in any way connected with the strikers now out. This results from a vote by the raincoat makers to go out on their own account next Monday morning.

The 2,000 men and women now out are members of the United Garment Workers' Union, an American Federation of Labor union. The Ladies' Garment Workers' Union, which threatens strike and which has 12,000 members, also is an A. F. of L. organization. Neither of these organizations have anything to do with the In-

INVITE ROOSEVELT HERE FOR MARCH 17

Colonel Roosevelt will be the main attraction of the Evacuation day celebration in South Boston on March 17 if the plans of the South Boston Citizens' Association committee in charge of the celebration are successful. The committee called upon Mayor Fitzgerald today to urge that he assist him in trying to bring the former President to Boston, and the Mayor agreed to take up the matter with ex-Councilman Matthew Hale, leader of the Massachusetts Progressives. Also, 4,000 G. A. R. to be allowed by the city for the coming celebration. Congressman Carley is working to have soldiers and marines parade.

HUNDREDS ARE SLAIN IN BATTLE

SOFIA, Bulgaria, Feb. 6.—The battle of Gallipoli is still raging, with the Turks giving away before the repeated assaults of the Bulgarian army, under General Petroff.

Four villages on the peninsula of Gallipoli, Mercata, Bulair, Charkeui and Kevak, were occupied today by Bulgarian troops and the Turkish defenders were either put to flight, killed or taken prisoners. Reinforcements are rapidly being pushed forward for the final rush of Bulgarian troops on the peninsula. Fresh artillery is also being moved to the front, but owing to the bad condition of the roads the progress is slow.

A military dispatch states that an entire Turkish detachment has been cut to pieces near the River Avak in the peninsula of Gallipoli. Hundreds of Turks were killed, wounded or taken prisoners.

The entire Turkish army of 45,000 men, in the Peninsular district, was said to be retreating in disorder toward the Marmora coast, where there are Ottoman fortifications.

65,000 Attack Adrianople.

LONDON, Feb. 6.—A general attack upon the forts defending the eastern side of Adrianople was begun by an army of 65,000 Bulgarians and Servians today, according to a telegram from Sofia.

This message stated that the Bulgars subjected the fort to a terrific bombardment of three hours before the infantry began their assault. The Bulgars and Serbs showed heroic courage beneath the deadly fire rained upon them by the Turkish cannon.

Reports of a forty-eight hour fight between Bulgarian and Turkish troops on the peninsula of Gallipoli were confirmed by a telegram from Constantinople. The Bulgarians were reported to be defending the Turks became of their superior equipment.

The battle of Gallipoli is being fought out upon territory of immense strategic importance. The peninsula, which is sixty-two miles long, separates the Dardanelles on the southeast from the Aegean Sea and the Gulf of Saros. The width of the strip is from three to thirteen miles. By cutting out the Turks the allies would practically command the Dardanelles. The chief town about which the heaviest fighting is centering is Gallipoli. It is the seat of a Greek bishop's see and has a population of 40,000. It is strongly fortified, with a strong citadel and numerous outlying works. It has extensive commerce.

A Reigrade telegram states that the Albanians, taking advantage of the resumption of fighting between the allies and Turkey, have arisen against the Servians. An army of thirty thousand Albanians is marching upon Uskub, which is held by the Servians.

Turks Are Confident.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Feb. 6.—Hard fighting between Turkish troops and the allies was going forward at five widely distant points in southeastern Europe today. The Turkish war office announced that the Turks were making a brilliant defence at every point, and that the Balkan allies were being held off with comparative ease.

Three hundred Bulgarians are reported to have been killed in the bombardment of the Bulgar camp at Myriofilo on the Sea of Marmora by a Turkish armed sloop.

SALEM, Feb. 6.—Not guilty was the verdict rendered by the jury in the Superior Criminal court at 9.30 p. m. today, in the case of Clarence Vetterlin, charged with manslaughter of John Stanley in Lawrence, Oct. 19, 1912. John P. Kane was counsel for Vetterlin.

Boston to Run Big Merry-Go-Round in Franklin Park

A large municipal merry-go-round will be located in Franklin Park the coming Summer according to plans, to popularize the park, which Mayor Fitzgerald announced is now considering today.

The Mayor will take up with the Park Commissioners at once the proposition of erecting a suitable building to house the merry-go-round and it will be operated at cost. Three rides for five cents, the Mayor believes, might furnish sufficient money to reimburse the city.

The merry-go-round is only one of a number of features which the Mayor proposes to introduce in order to attract thousands more to Franklin Park, particularly on Sunday. He will request the park department to purchase a number of cows and sell pure milk.

The Mayor is also negotiating with theatrical men in New York as to the practicability of erecting a stage or platform that will permit open air dramatic and operatic productions in the open air. These stages have been operated successfully in the open air of Germany and other European countries.

FOREMAN BEATEN TO DEATH AT NIGHT IN HINSDALE, N. H.

HINSDALE, N. H., Feb. 6.—James Brewster Hamilton, a railroad construction foreman of Rochester, N. Y., was beaten to death by unknown persons last night. The body, bearing many bruises, was found at 7 o'clock this morning in the Ashuelot river, where he boarded, today. The house is four miles from the village.

Hamilton had charge of 1,000 men, and had been in numerous engaged in building the new Brattleboro, Vt., and Hinsdale, N. H., branch of the Boston & Maine Railroad.

The directors, Holbrook, Cabot & Rollins Corporation of Boston, have offered a $500 reward for the detection of the murderers.

ITEMIZED ACCOUNT OF $160,500 STEAL GIVEN TO RECEIVER

How George W. Coleman rob bed the National City Bank of $160,500 and handed over the proceeds to William J. ("Big Bill") Kelliher was revealed today in an itemized list of stealings which Coleman has prepared and handed over to Receiver John L. Bates. It is called "List A," and is a remarkable document, showing how a $12 a week bookkeeper in a national bank was able without detection to rob the bank of an average of four times a week of from $3,000 to $5,000 at each time.

The stealings began, Coleman says, on June 2, 1909, and continued every few days until February 5, 1910, when Coleman was able to hand over to Kelliher only $1,000, apologizing, as Kelliher has told in his confession, "that there was no more to steal."

COLEMAN'S LIST OF HIS STEALINGS.

With the publication of "List A," which has been secured by the AMERICAS, the mystery of Coleman's recent trip to Boston, where he worked over the books of the wrecked bank to aid the receiver is solved.

Coleman in "List A" accounts for but $160,500 of his stealings. In his bill of complaint Receiver Bates states that Kelliher received not less than $185,000 of the bank loot from Coleman. Mr. Bates is trying to account for the $24,500 difference which Coleman has not accounted for in his gifts to Kelliher.

Here is "List A" as prepared by Coleman:

CAMBRIDGE GIRL SAVES LIFE IN VASSAR TRAGEDY

Friends and relatives of Miss Mildred Kennison of No. 1322 Massachusetts avenue, North Cambridge, were gladdened by the news that she was among the rescued in the toboggan tragedy which has cast a gloom over Vassar College, Poughkeepsie. Miss Elizabeth Mitchell of Poughkeepsie was the only one of the five students concerned to lose her life.

Miss Kennison is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred A. Kennison. She is a graduate of the Cambridge Latin School and is a sophomore at Vassar. Her sister Ethel, graduated from the Poughkeepsie College last year. Miss Kennison has always been active in school and college athletics and was a member of the C. L. S. girl's basket ball team her senior year.

The tragedy happened when five young women coasted on a toboggan last night down Sunshine Hill. The impetus took them out on the ice of the artificial lake on the campus.

The toboggan crashed through the ice. Miss Mylod, 19, only child of John J. Mylod, corporation counsel and Democratic leader of Poughkeepsie, was caught under the ice and drowned.

Miss Phoebe Briggs, a student and daughter of Dr. William L. Briggs of Sacramento, Cal., proved herself a genuine heroine by rushing into the water and rescuing the other girls.

She is an expert swimmer and succeeded in bringing the four girls to the edge of the broken ice, where they were aided in getting out by Professor George B. Shattuck, attached out a plank and dragged them to safety. Miss Briggs dived several times under the ice to try to find Miss Mylod.

The other girls rescued were Miss Agnes Hulst, daughter of C. J. Hulst of New Hamburg, N. Y.; Miss Laura Reid of Kingston, N. Y., and Miss Annie J. Oldham, daughter of J. R. Oldham of Cleveland.

$1,200,000 LOSS TO U. S. ON "OLEO"

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—The government loses approximately $1,200,000 every year because the Treasury Department is unable to collect duties on oils used in the manufacture of oleomargarine, according to Commissioner of International Revenue Cabell's testimony before a House committee today. Defective laws, he said, enabled the manufacturers to tie up procedure in the courts.

'DON'T PARDON CUMMINGS,' IS HIGGINS' PLEA

District Attorney Higgins of Middlesex County, in a communication to Governor Foss today, came out strongly in opposition to the granting of a pardon to Charles S. Cummings, the broker, who was sentenced to from five to eight years in state Prison, for uttering a forged note for $15,000 on the town of Framingham.

This is not a case for the exercise of executive clemency," he declares.

John B. Lombard, the town treasurer of Framingham, is now serving ten to fifteen years for complicity with Cummings, it having been charged that Lombard forged the notes and Cummings disposed of them.

In the communication to the Governor, Higgins says that the total amount of money lost by the town is $——— and, after stating that there is no proof showing that Lombard benefited financially, he declares:

BEACH TELLS HOW HIS WIFE WAS STABBED

AIKEN, S. C., Feb. 6.—Dressed in a green suit of ultra fashionable cut, Frederick O. Beach, the rich New York clubman, accused of slashing his wife in the throat with a knife in an effort to kill her, took the witness stand when his trial was resumed today, and under oath denied the charges against him.

Mr. Beach was the first witness called when the defense resumed its case.

The court room was taxed to its capacity many men and women socially prominent in New York and other cities being present. Eight hundred persons were jammed in the room which ordinarily accommodates only 600.

On the night Mrs. Beach was attacked, said the witness, Mrs. Hollins and Miss Marion Hollins, a guest, were in their home.

Pursued the Assailant.

"Miss Hollins retired about 9 o'clock," said the witness. "Soon afterward Mrs. Beach and I heard a scream. I thought perhaps negroes were quarrelling in the street, so I did not even quit reading the newspaper I had in my hands. Soon we heard another scream.

"Mrs. Beach arose to retire, but as she did so she called her dogs, a poodle and a Norwegian hound, and let them out the door. She followed outside herself, closing the door behind her. About two minutes later I heard my wife scream. I jumped up and ran to the front veranda of our cottage and saw my wife standing at the corner of the house. A dark figure darted between us and ran out the front gate.

"This is Beach."

"I hastened to my wife's side, calling out, 'What has he done to you?' My wife answered, 'Oh, he has done something dreadful to me.' She was on the point of fainting, and I caught her in my arms and carried her inside the house. Then I rushed upstairs, got my revolver and ran toward the house of the Aiken Club, thinking to get a glimpse of the assailant. I did not see him, so I returned to the house to see how badly my wife was hurt. As I reached the door I knocked upon it, and in order to allay the fears of those inside I called out in a loud voice, 'This is Beach; let him in.'

Mr. Beach was calm and collected on the stand and told his story in a clear, firm voice. Occasionally his wife would glance at him for encouragement. Beach gave his age as fifty-seven and he said he regarded Aiken as his home.

Clothing Bloodstained.

"Miss Hollins admitted me after I had shouted 'This is Beach; let me in.'

"After a brief space I again went into the yard and met Dr. Wyman, who had been attracted by the noise. I ran to the Aiken clubhouse and telephoned to Dr. Hall to come and attend my wife."

The clothing worn by Beach on the night of the attack was then exhibited. It consisted of a pair of tweed knickerbockers, a silk vest, a red satin house coat and a pair of patent leather pumps.

The coat is still stained with blood, but Beach said "this man" had cleaned the waistcoat the following morning.

Beach identified the pocket knife as his own, but after examining it he said:

"This knife is not now as it was when I gave it to Baughn, for Atlanta detective. Then it had two blades."

Questioned about the knife, Beach said:

"Baughn asked me if he might keep the knife and I told him he could. He and Mayor Gyles took it and I did not see it again until yesterday. When I left for New York last Spring I went to Mayor Gyles and asked if I could not have my knife, for I prize it very much. He said he had decided to keep it a while longer, but he was very friendly. As I was leaving he slapped me on the back and said: 'Be a good boy now and have a good time.'"

Didn't Know Legal Procedure.

Congressman Hymns conducted the direct examination of Beach.

"Who first told you that people around town suspected you of stabbing your wife?" asked Congressman Hymns.

"Colonel Henderson told me when I retained him," replied the witness. Beach did not recall having told E. S. Dilley, a rural policeman, that Mrs. Beach's earrings were worth $4,000 or $5,000, whereas they were worth only $2 or $3.

Prosecuting Attorney Gunter conducted the cross-examination. Beach replied that he had not appealed to the Prosecuting Attorney's office for aid in tracking down the assailant because he was ignorant of the proper procedure, never having been entangled in a criminal case before.

Ran for His Pistl.

In reply to questions from Prosecutor Gunter, Mr. Beach said:

"As soon as I had carried Mrs. Beach into the home I ran upstairs for my pistol. Then I rushed into the street, but the whole transaction, I believe, did not take over fifteen or twenty seconds. I never thought how long it might have taken me, but I will wager you, Mr. Prosecutor, that I could do it in thirty seconds."

"That's going some," remarked the prosecuting attorney.

Beach reiterated that none of the blades of his knife was broken when he gave the knife to Detective Baughn.

"Do you remember," asked Mr. Gunter, "that while you and Mrs. Beach were being questioned in Mayor Gyles' office you tried to get your wife to lay the crime upon the brother of Pearl Hampton, your wife's colored maid, and that you refused, saying she would not get any innocent person in trouble?"

Beach flushed with anger and jumped to his feet.

"That is false," he cried, shaking his fist.

During the cross-examination Gunter touched at length upon the suicide of "Charlie" Havemeyer, former husband of Mrs. Beach. Beach said he married his wife eighteen months after her first husband killed himself at Roslyn, L. I. He denied, however, that he was at Roslyn when the tragedy occurred.

"Sometimes when you went to New York didn't you leave your wife here alone in Aiken?" asked Gunter.

"Yes; often," replied the witness.

Beach said he first learned of the London that a warrant had been issued for him. After a few more questions he left the stand.

Foss Vetoes Big Salary Raies for Excise Board Men

Governor Foss today sent into the Legislature the first veto of the year. He returned without his approval a bill to increase the salaries of the members of the Boston Excise Board.

The vetoed measure provided for an increase from $4,000 to $5,500 for the chairman of the Excise Board, from $3,500 to $5,000 for the other members, and for a salary of $3,500 for the secretary. William P. Fowler has just been confirmed as chairman of the board.

In giving his reasons for the veto, Governor Foss says:

It has been my experience throughout two administrations and thus far during a third administration, that the Commonwealth has, in general, no difficulty in obtaining the services of highly qualified men and women to fill the vacancies in the public service at the existing rates of compensation.

Moreover, many serious objections may be raised against the general policy of greatly increasing the salaries of our public servants. Public office in Massachusetts must never be sought for personal profit.

I object also to this bill because the members of the Licensing Board are not required to give their entire time and attention to the duties of their office, while this bill, if approved, would grant them salaries considerably in excess of the sums paid for equally important services in other departments requiring the entire time and attention of the officeholders.

WILLIAM A. DORR HAS BUT $2 LEFT ON EVE OF HIS MURDER TRIAL

William A. Dorr, the young Californian accused of the murder of George E. Marsh, a wealthy Lynn manufacturer, last April, is almost penniless. Only $2 remain of the $1,200 in cash which he had when the officers brought him East months ago.

He has spent the money for special meals and in preparations for his trial, which will begin February 17. Judge Quinn, who served at the trial of Etter and Giovannitti, will preside.

Dorr has availed himself of every privilege allowed homicide defendants. He hasn't spared expense in getting special dainties, and now that his means have gone he fears that he may have to go to trial without counsel.

Dorr was assured today that Attorney C. Neal Barney will continue to act in his behalf, and that the court is bound under the law to provide him with an attorney at the State's expense.

WALSH TO SPEAK TO HARDWARE MEN

Lieutenant Governor Walsh and Congressman George W. Prince of Illinois will speak tonight at the twenty-fifth anniversary dinner of the New England Iron and Hardware Association, to be held at the Somerset. Former Congressman Samuel L. Powers will be toastmaster and President Fred L. Greely will welcome the guests, among whom will be James A. Farrell, president of the United States Steel Corporation; E. P. Thomas, president of the United States Rubber Products Company, and the Rev. Edward Cummings.

SEES TRUST BOOM IN FREE CANAL

NEW YORK, Feb. 6.—"There is no other monopoly that has had so many favors as our coastwise trade," declared Representative Frederick C. Stevens of Minnesota, of the House Committee on Canals, state and Foreign Commerce, speaking at the annual dinner of the Northwestern Society. "Free tolls on the Panama Canal never only the big business and are against the small business," he added.

M'COMBS GETS GOLD LOVING CUP

NEW YORK, Feb. 6.—A gold loving cup was presented to Chairman William F. McCombs of the Democratic National Committee by his associates in the recent campaign. The presentation speech was made by Norman E. Mack. Wouin Mc. McCombs succeeded as chairman.

TO 'CASKET GLIDE' AT PALLBEARERS' BALL

ST. LOUIS, Feb. 6.—In a hall adorned with coffins, funeral shrouds and skeletons, the Jolly Pallbearers' Club of Belleston will hold a gloomless ball St. Valentine's night. The "casket glide" will be the feature dance.

WELLESLEY HAS 1ST MEN'S DANCE FRIDAY EVENING

The heart of the Wellesley College girl beat fast and a little faster today as every hour brought so much nearer the senior dance tomorrow night, the first men-are-to-be-there dance in the history of the college.

General arrangements for the dance have been completed by the committee, but each girl in the senior class is still in a flutter of preparation over her dress and just how she shall "do" her hair and all the thousand and one things which any girl will understand perfectly well.

The importance of looking her best at this dance is obvious—for Yale men and Harvard men and other men will be there. As it's the first time Wellesley ever had such a thing here—at a dance, the senior class is naturally in a delightful flutter of anticipation.

The college administration is being quite lenient. Many of the men guests will remain in the town over the week-end, putting up at Wellesley Inn, if they come from a distance. They will attend the Glee Club concert Saturday evening and will walk the next day to take their college friends driving or motoring and so on. For this will be the annual "open Sunday," when the usual strict rules will be abated a little.

"Your Correspondent" at Wellesley writes that:

"The dances will be waits, two-step, schottische and polka. There will be no fancy dances—none of the late variety."

Which may be taken as one way of saying that the Wellesley girls agree with E. Hough-Hopper in the pathos-proof of the Boston Assembly that the turkey trot and such steps are not to be thought of for a moment.

"Your Correspondent" also writes the pleasing information that:

"During intermission a delicious supper will be served."

Evidently the college girls, in planning for their first man-dance, bear in mind the saying of Solomon and in managing men: "Feed the brute."

See the fascinating "young brutes" from Harvard, Yale and elsewhere are to be regaled with a "delicious supper," as well as have the society of the winsome maids.

The further statement of "Your Correspondent" that "many of the men will come from quite a distance" is easily believed, as the prospect seems well worth it.

Lettered Spaces for Girls.

Another feature. There will be about 150 couples on the dance floor in Mary Hemenway gym. In order that the men may find their partners readily, the alphabet system has been adopted. Large gilt letters will be placed on the walls around the gym.

If a youth is dancing with Miss Virginia Wick of the dance committee he will take her, at the end of the dance to a spot under letter "W." When the next chap dances with Miss Wick for the following dance he will look among the "W" girls, thus facilitating partnerships and avoiding waste of time.

The chaperon rules for tomorrow night are ahead. Ordinarily the girls have to be with a chaperon after 10 p. m., but they will be allowed to dispense with these regulations for the dance. The dance ends at midnight.

The receiving line will include Miss Ellen Fitz Pendleton, president of the college; Miss Amy Homans, head of the department of hygiene and physical education; Miss Mary Colt, president of the senior class; Miss Helen Brant, vice-president of the senior class, and Miss Virginia Wick, chairman of the dance committee.

Freshies in Dressing Room.

On the dance committee are the Misses Virginia Wick, Olive and Mary Tripp, Ruth Van Biercom, Lucille Backman, Edith Wilbur and Lauretta Thomas. They will also act as ushers.

The hends of college departments will act as chaperons and there will be twelve freshman girls to assist the seniors in the dressing room. These twelve fortunate "freshies" are: Misses Pauline Shorey, Margaret Davidson, Edith Jones, Janet Bane, Margaret Seely, Helen Kennedy, Louise Coffin Jeffington, Harriet Russell, Priscilla Barrows, Grace Newton, Ethel Williams and Dorothy Sutton.

WOMAN BEATEN WITH REVOLVER BY N. Y. BANDITS

NEW YORK, Feb. 6.—Beaten with the butt of a revolver when she refused to give two highwaymen her purse, Mrs. Elizabeth Palmer was found unconscious today at West Twenty-seventh street and Eleventh avenue. It is said, she identified as her assailants, are held on charges of assault and robbery.

Mrs. Palmer is in a serious condition. She told the police that she had been away for a week, as her mother was ill at her home in Holyoke, Mass. She reached the city early today.

ONLY 22 DAYS MORE IN THE BIG CONTEST

By CONTEST EDITOR.

Only twenty-two days more.

The AMERICAN'S great $40,000 prize contest will come to an end three weeks from tomorrow.

In twenty-two days candidates can do much. They can round up all the stray subscriptions in their territories.

The contest is whirling on to its finish. Three weeks from tomorrow it will be all settled as to who is to own the $10,000 capital prize and the other big awards.

Undoubtedly, many candidates who see their names well up at the top of next Sunday's vote list will say to themselves: "What's the use of hustling now? I am away ahead and there is only nineteen more days to go."

That is a dangerous feeling to have. You do not know what the other candidates may be doing just now. They may be holding back thousands, yes, tens of thousands of subscription votes. Take no chances. Get in every subscription and vote coupon you can before the finish.

The final vote standing before the contest ends will appear in next Sunday's AMERICAN, February 9. That list will be compiled up to last Monday, February 3, at 5:30 p. m. and will include all mail matter actually received at Contest Headquarters before that hour on that day.

After next Sunday's list no further standing will be published until the final prize winners are announced after February 22.

The disposition of $40,000 in cash and prizes is dependent upon your vote in the next three weeks, candidates. It is for you to decide just how much of this big prize money you will receive.

SOUTH BOSTON "L" SERVICE INCREASED

Beginning tomorrow the Boston Elevated Railway Company will establish an increased South Boston service during theatre hours. A new line will be operated from City Point to Summer street via Broadway, Dorchester avenue and Summer street, returning via Washington street and Broadway. The addition of the new line will provide approximately a three-minute service during the period when people are returning from the theatre.

OPIUM TRAFFIC AGAIN BREAKS OUT IN BOSTON

Traffic in opium has broken out in Boston's Chinatown again after it had been well suppressed, as a result of a campaign of the Chinese Merchants' Association. A prominent member of the organization states that opium is coming into Chinatown again and into the places frequented by white men and women in the South End and Back Bay districts. It arrives in little white jars similar to those used for cold face cream.

These jars of opium are prepared, according to the statement of this official, by a clique of Chinamen operating from either Watertown or Lowell. He has not yet determined which. He is preparing a report for the Watch and Ward Society and through it hopes to get his information before the federal authorities.

He stated that the Merchants' Association had practically wiped out opium smoking in Chinatown up to three months ago. The association is greatly disappointed at the new development which has frustrated its campaign. It had stopped the smoking by the younger members of the colony completely and had persuaded the older smokers to use a substitute paste, shown by analysis to contain no opium. This paste could be rolled like a pill and smoked with the regular layout. It seemed to satisfy the inveterate smokers.

The federal investigation of five years ago developed that the opium was being smuggled into Boston from Canada through some of the Maine towns. Tals prominent Chinaman believes that the same smuggling channels have been reopened.

MISS HELEN KELLER, who believes deafness the affliction which most completely cuts her off from the world.

NEW YORK, Feb. 6.—Helen Keller, the blind, deaf and dumb philosopher, authoress and humanitarian, tonight will appear for the first time on the lecture platform in Montclair, N. J., and deliver an address on "The Heart and the Hand, or the Right Use of Our Senses." Mrs. Anne Macy, who for twenty-six years has been her teacher and companion, will accompany her pupil and give an account of her life and education.

"You are all more deaf and blind than I," said Miss Keller in a group of newspaper men and women, to whom she granted an interview in her apartments in the Hotel Astor. "I would not change my identity for that of the ordinary human drum person who has eyes and ears, yet sees not nor hears. The ability to understand and the will to do are the true lights of life."

Miss Keller sat on a sofa, her right hand clasping that of her teacher, her left laid along Mrs. Macy's cheek, one finger laid across her mouth. The sensitive fingers of the blind girl pulsed to the vibrations in the mouth of the speaker, and made her understand what was being said.

"What is your latest fixed interest?" she was asked.

"Socialism," was her reply. "I am a Socialist because I believe in fair play."

"Do you take interest in your dress?" queried a woman.

"Of course I do. I am a woman. Even fire thought about her fig leaf," she answered.

Asked which of her afflictions she considered the worst, Miss Keller unhesitatingly answered: "Deafness. It cuts you off from all the world, while blindness only shuts you from the light."

PRINCESS MURAT, AMERICAN HEIRESS, IS REWED IN CHURCH

PARIS, Feb. 6.—Prince and Princess Michael Murat, the latter Miss Helena Stallo of Cincinnati before her civil marriage to the Prince here yesterday, were today wedded by religious ceremony in the Catholic Church of St. Honore d'Eylau. Prince Joachim Murat, head of the house, and the Duke de Mouchy were witnesses for the bridegroom, and Ambassador Herrick and Judge Nash Rockwood, New York, for the bride, at the civil ceremony before the Mayor. Today's ceremony was very quiet owing to the recent death of the bridegroom's father, Prince Louis Murat.

Princess Murat inherited more than $10,000,000 from the estate of her grandfather, Alexander McDonald, the Standard Oil capitalist.

SIR WILLIAM DOWNS EARL IN REPARTEE

NEW YORK, Feb. 6.—An amusing incident is related about Sir William Mulock, Chief Justice of Ontario, who is visiting here, and the then Canadian Governor-General Earl Grey. One day he was pleading with the Prime Minister, and in his broadest Scotch, remarked:

"In plain English, ma Lord," whereupon Earl Grey, loosely remarked:

"In plain Scotch, you mean, Sir William."

The M. P. instantly rejoined: "Nae mair! In plain commonsense, ma Lord, and that's th' same in a' languages, ye'll ken."

"WOMEN 20 TIMES WORST TIPPLERS"

DENVER, Col., Feb. 6.—Following an attack made by Mrs. Helen Rice Robinson, Colorado's first woman Senator, to the effect that Senator John Hecker of Colorado, had stated in a Washington paper that women drank more than men, Hecker said in the Senate that not only did women drink more than men, but that the ratio of tipulous females was twenty to one male in the Centennial State.

DENIES DIVORCE TO LAMB AND TO SINGER IN CAFE

The double divorce suit of Gilbert C. Lamb, a coalmerchant with Lamb, and Grace C. Lamb, a cafe singer, was dismissed by Judge Irwin in Suffolk Superior Court today because, in the court's opinion, neither of the parties has lived up to the allegations in the pleadings and has no right to relief."

Judge Irwin refused a divorce to either husband or wife after Mrs. Lamb had had her turn on the witness stand today and had admitted frankly her love for "Jack" Lamb, who was named by the husband in the latter's bill of complaint. "Jack" Lamb is no relative of Gilbert C. Lamb, the husband.

"Mrs. Lamb said she "fell out" with "Jack" Lamb because, after he was named in the suit, "he preferred being a stranger."

Denies Throwing Inkwells.

Mrs. Lamb, who is young, tall and comely, alleged cruelty and non-support against her husband. In his cross bill Gilbert C. Lamb charged her with desertion and also a mote serious offense.

In replying today to her husband's story and in presenting her own case, Mrs. Lamb said on the stand:

I never threw any ink-wells at my husband. He left me early in 1906, saying that he was in trouble about the obtaining of a ring on false pretenses, and I have not heard from him for a year or more. Recently he had sent me word that he wanted me to get a divorce; and that if I would not consent to it, he would not ask for the custody of our child, Jean, for my action.

I have been making my living as a singer in cafes, playing cafes on my ukulele and employ singers. I was at work late in the nights and sometimes until the early hours of the morning; and when it was too late to go to my room, I stayed in a nearby hotel, such as I could afford to go to. My husband has not contributed toward the support of myself or my child since he left us.

Admits She Loves Jack.

I did have a gentleman friend by the name of Jack A. Lamb—his real name is John; he is not related to my husband; in fact I think he does not like to connect him with the family of Gilbert C. my husband.

Yes, I love him; and the way we feel out is because of the way he treated me. If you must know it. When he found out that he was made corespondent in this case he preferred being a stranger. I speak to him, in the streets.

I met him at a fire, on Washington street. We were both there at the fire, and he asked me whether I was interested in the fire department, and I said yes, in the horses. Then we took a walk, made an appointment, went to the theatre, and we were friends.

Judge Irwin, in dismissing the double suit, said:

While I, personally, have no sympathy for a woman who lives as Mrs. Lamb does, still I take into consideration the fact that the husband left her with a ten-months-old baby and she has had to try to make her living as best she could.

She was indiscreet, that is true, but she belongs to the class of women who think more of the applause of the music hall than of aught else and perhaps who did not fully see her a wife should. Still, the husband did not do his duty, either.

Evidence and his own admission discloses he did not even support his own child.

The Backward Season compels me to sacrifice my entire stock of OVERCOATS Regardless of Cost

We've just passed through the warmest January in twenty-two years—so the weather man says. My overcoat selling has suffered in consequence so materially that I now find myself heavily overstocked. Boston men know that I never beat about the bush in a critical situation. As usual, I'm facing the issue squarely with an immense price cut all through my overcoat stock.

Every good overcoat style you can imagine goes. Single and double-breasted models, box back, plain or belted or with the inverted pleat effects; notch or shawl collars. Handsome velours, English and Scotch Tweeds, chinchillas, newest rough cheviots, fancy cassimeres, not forgetting conservative kerseys and meltons in blue, black and grays. Most of the fabrics in accordance with the new fashion have blanket backs, and they're 1-4, 1-2 or full lined with either satin or silk. Here's the list of my price cutting:

$12.00 and $15.00 Now	$7.50
$16.50 and $18.00 Now	$9.50
$20.00 and $22.50 Now	$11.50
$25.00 and $28.00 Now	$13.50
$30.00 and $32.50 Now	$15.50
$35.00 and $37.50 Now	$17.50
$40.00 and $42.50 Now	$19.50
$45.00 and $50.00 Now	$21.50

Any One Taken Out for the Asking

Alterations, when necessary, Made FREE

Fur-lined and Fur Auto Coats

The warm weather that spoiled the overcoat season naturally hit fur coats even harder, and my reductions are proportionately greater. I can save you more than 50% on any fur-lined or fur auto coat in my stock—here are my three leaders:

Coat lined with marmot, Persian, Seal or rat collar, value $50.	Coat lined with Northern muskrat, selected skins, choice of collars, value $75.	Coat lined with full Jap Mink, choice of collars, value $100.
$25.00	$37.50	$45.00

And so on up to the finest Eastern mink-lined coats, valued at $350—now $150.00

Big Suit Savings

I have not spared the suits in my present sweeping reductions. My entire suit stock, ranging in value and former price from $15 to $45—now cut down to $10, $12, $15, $18, $20, $22.50 and $25. The most beautiful assortments imaginable are embraced, from the newest Americanized English style in the smartest high colorings to the most conservative models in quiet blues, grays and blacks.

GARMENT GIRL TELLS ANGELA MORGAN 16-HOUR DAY KEEPS FOUR ALIVE

By ANGELA MORGAN.

Here is the very worst story I have heard from the striking women garment workers. I couldn't believe it at first, yet I found it impossible to imagine a young girl, or even an older woman standing up under the strain of such an experience. It will be hard for you to believe, too, scarcely anyone would credit it.

ANGELA MORGAN

But it is true. An actual story of an actual girl right here in Boston, striving to earn living conditions for a mother, a brother, a sister and herself.

Here is the very worst story I have heard from the striking women garment workers. I couldn't believe it at first, for I found it impossible to imagine a young girl, or even an older woman standing up under the strain of such an experience. It will be hard for you to believe, too, be hard for you to believe, too. Scarcely anyone would credit it.

But it is true. An actual story of an actual girl, right here in Boston, striving to earn living conditions for a mother, a brother, a sister and herself.

Her name is Amy Mills, and she has been working SIXTEEN HOURS A DAY. From 7 in the morning till 11 o'clock at night this poor little human machine, struggling in vain to earn enough for four people by STRETCHING THE DAY INTO THE NIGHT, has been toiling with her needle, stopping only to eat a bit of bread placed upon her working table.

She has not felt that she could afford to stop for lunch. Every moment has counted for her, for she has done piece work at so much per piece, and every penny was absolutely needed to meet the expenses at home.

But this is not all. Amy couldn't make enought by working sixty days, so she worked SUNDAYS as well. The manufacturer did not know it. I am told. But the contractor did. The boss furnished Amy with a key, and she had access to the shop on Sundays, and there she sat at her work table, drudging away the hours that should have meant rest for her tired fingers, fresh air and sunlight for her already over-worked body.

Today Amy went back to her work under new conditions, for her shop was one of those that settled, and the contractor allowed the strikers' demands. But so accustomed was poor Amy to the machine-like drudgery of other days that habit asserted itself, and when lunch time came she scarcely paused except for the bite of bread that had been her usual portion.

Poor Amy! Time is such a luxury to her that she feels almost guilty to be wasting it in any such occupation as eating. It isn't right, she feels for her to be doing anything else than sewing, sewing, every hour of the day and into the night.

Her health? Her rest? What right has she to think of herself? Coal must be paid for and gas and rent and clothing. The little brother and sister must be kept in school. Her own welfare is the last thing to be considered.

Supporting Sick Relatives.

This was the pathetic note I found in all the statements uttered by girl and women strikers today. So urgent has been the demand on them for the necessities of life, so great the pressure to earning them, that every other thought has been swept aside.

Little girls scarcely in their teens told me with intensity of struggles to support mothers, or sisters, or fathers who were ill and out of work. Their care-marked faces, tragically wise and old, looked out at me strangely from youthful caps and hats. In matter-of-fact tones, and with no light of youth or expectation in their eyes, these school girls—girls they should scarcely more than that—told me of family burdens too heavy even for men to carry.

"How long have I worked? Why, ever since I was fourteen. I was invariably the answer to my question. Each girl said it unconsciously, as if it would have been a strange thing not to have worked since she was fourteen.

It was a curiously touching spectacle to see these girls gathered at union headquarters, trying to keep cheerful under the pressure of present conditions.

Upstairs in one of the rooms groups of them gathered about a piano and tried to be cheerful, singing songs and playing the instrument. It was better to be here than outside in the cold. It was far better than staying at home, where there was no fire and no comfort, and in many cases no bread in the pantry.

Stories of Want and Toil.

All day long they continued coming, women of all ages and mixed nationalities, thronging the halls or seeking refuge in the room above where the younger women were singing.

It was here at No. 724 Washington street that I talked with them, listening to one story after another of want and struggle and the everything toil that meant only a pittance.

Samuel Zorn, the strike chairman, came forward with the most startling revelations he has yet made concerning woman's labor in Boston sweat shops.

What do you think of a shop where girls are working for $3 a week? Expert workers, doing the most skilful finishing, which is always work done by hand?

Such a shop has been found in Boston on Washington street. This is not an average wage, but an actual week-ly wage paid by the employer of these girls for work which produces men's suits retailing at $20 and over.

"It is a fact just discovered to-day," said Mr. Zorn. "I found the shop, and I know the exact figures of what the girls earn and what work they do. In this shop, too, there are boys and men doing work for $7 a week that ought to bring $15."

One girl said she knew of a shop where, if one went early in the morning, before working hours, one would always find workers there ahead of time.

At Five in Morning.

"Even if you went at 5 o'clock in the morning there would be some one trying to get in extra labor to earn a little extra money for the family at home."

Amy Mills, whose story I have already told, was one who weighed that even on Sunday, no matter how early she went to the shop, there was always someone ahead of her, eager as she was to get the most out of the day.

Three Italian women, finishers, told me through an interpreter their stories of long hours and little pay, making buttonholes for men's coats and vests. Two of them, Anna and Rose Barcella, are sisters. They support a father and mother out of their meagre wage of $4 weekly salary.

The other Italian woman, Gaetana Miranda, admitted readily, and in a matter-of-fact way, that she has been working twelve hours a day to support a mother, a sister and a brother. An work was not steady she could not, with all her efforts, earn much over $3.50 average wage.

These three women are among the fortunate strikers who will go back to work under improved conditions today.

$500,000 LEFT TO NORTHAMPTON GIRL IN FATHER'S WILL

NORTHAMPTON, Feb. 6.—Edith Hodges Walker learned today that she is to receive $500,000 under the terms of the will of her father, Frank P. Hodges, a manufacturer, who died January 31, leaving an estate of $850,000. The will has just been filed for probate in New York.

The right to use "Alexandra Inn" and "Green Lodge" properties in Sunapee, N. H., is left to Harry D. Hodges of Milton, a nephew. The widow receives a life interest in $300,000.

GIOVANNITTI AND ETTOR IN GARMENT WAR

dustrial Workers of the World, of which Ettor and Giovannitti are leaders.

Business men and store owners today endeavored to end the strike. Efforts were made to bring about a conference between the manufacturers and the strikers. The principal owner in a large department store made the proposition. He communicated with Frank H. McCarthy, New England organizer of the American Federation of Labor, and the Central Labor Union offices, and to them broached his plan. It was that the labor unions co-operate with a committee of business men and store owners to see what could be done. The committee of business men and store owners is being organized today.

The plan, when broached to President Zorn, in charge of the strike committee, by President McCarthy of the Central Labor Union and General Organizer McCarthy, met with his hearty approval. Steps are under way today to bring about this conference.

A mass meeting of the women strikers was held this afternoon at No. 724 Washington street, when Miss Mabel Gillespie of the Women's Trade Union League and other women officers and leaders of the various unions will speak. The meeting was called by Miss Gillespie, as she has some important plans which she wishes to broach. It is understood, though plans are to be held every afternoon this week.

One hundred raincoat makers are expected to strike Monday, following a strike vote taken at a mass meeting in Knights of Honor Hall, No. 730 Washington street. The demands are to be presented to the manufacturers today. It is understood, if they are not granted, the strike order will be read Monday morning. It is expected.

If the raincoat makers strike, it will add to a thousand men and women to the large number already on strike. Hyman Cohen, agent of the union, was busy today in making preparations for the strike, should it be called next week.

Governor Foss said that, should either party petition the Board of Arbitration to arbitrate their difficulties, the matter would then come under his jurisdiction. He intimated that, after waiting a reasonable time, he might interfere. He said:

I believe it is wise to wait a while before taking any action in the hope that the conflicting parties will see that it is right to submit their differences to the Board.

ARBITRATION DEMANDED IN MAINE STRIKE

AUGUSTA, Me., Feb. 6.—For the first time in the history of the State the Legislature has interfered in a strike. The House today passed unanimously an order calling on both parties in the Bangor & Aroostook Railroad strike to submit the controversy to a board of arbitration within a week.

If the striking engineers and firemen and the officials of the road do not so submit the questions at issue, the order provides that a joint committee to consist of three Senators and, "as many as the House shall join," shall proceed with an investigation of the suspension of traffic of the road and duties of the contro versy and report to the Legislature by bill or otherwise not later than February 20, 1913.

The committee is authorized to employ counsel and experts, compel attendance of persons and the production of books and papers with it deems necessary.

The order was introduced by Representative John Clark Scates of Westbrook, who stated that he did so at the request of residents of Aroostook County. They informed him by letter and telegram, he said, that unless the strike was settled soon the business interests of the county would be ruined.

$25,000 ASKED FOR CATHOLIC CHAPEL

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—With a view to raising by popular subscription $250,000 for the erection of a new chapel, the Catholic University within the next few days will send subscription books throughout the country. The women of the church started the project, which has the indorsement of Cardinal Gibbons.

PROVEN HELPS TO HEALTH AND BEAUTY

FACE LOTION—Face powder often makes complexions rough and "muddy"-looking by clogging up the skin pores. By dissolving four ounces of spermax in one-half pint witch hazel or hot water and adding two teaspoonfuls glycerine, you can make a lotion that not only affords the very best aid to the skin, but does not rub off or show like powder. This is inexpensive and perfect for taking away that shiny, oily sallow look and making the skin smooth, clear and beautiful.

HAIR TONIC—To insure a healthy condition of the scalp and stimulate hair growth, use the following inexpensive tonic: Dissolve an ounce of quinosis in one-half pint of alcohol (not wood), then add one-half pint cold water. Rub into roots twice a week and you will be delighted with the result. This simple tonic makes the hair soft, glossy and fluffy without any trace of stickiness, removes dandruff and relieves itching scalp.

REDUCE WEIGHT—Weight can be put safely and quickly by using parsetia properly. Get four ounces of parsetia from your druggist, dissolve in one and one-half pints hot water and strain when cool. Take a tablespoonful before meals. The parsetia treatment can be stopped when the weight is where you want it, without fear of the fat returning. This method of reduction leaves the graceful lines of the figure and firm and smooth flesh and skin.

KELIHER ASKS FREEDOM IN RETURN FOR TELLING ABOUT HIS ACCOMPLICES

ment officials to "meet him half way." "Big Bill" admits he seeks revenge on the men he accuses of "trimming" him, but adds that he is striving to do more than "get back" at his enemies. He says he wants to do three things:

First, to help the government bring about the arrests of all those concerned in the Cambridge Bank steal-ing.

Second, to help himself, if possible.

Third, to help those who lost by the looting of the bank.

Clash Over Evidence.

"I am eager and anxious to tell," says Keliher, "because the justice of the city requires the exposure. All that I ask is that the government treat me like a man, meet me half way, give me coun-sel and do what it can to help me."

Next to Keliher's proposal to the government authorities the most interesting development was the controversy growing out of conflicting statements from District Attorney Pelletier and United States Dis-trict Attorney French as to how Keliher told his counsel secured possession of the secret records of the Suffolk Grand Jury before which George W. Colman had tes-tified. "Big Bill" read these records, he says, before he was tried. His statement is now confirmed.

District Attorney Pelletier declared that Keliher's counsel was given a transcript of the evidence before the Suffolk Grand Jury. Pelletier claims that United States District Attorney French furnished the transcript.

Mr. French denies this flatly. He says he did not give out the copy of the rec-ords, but that he does not know where the transcript of the evidence came from.

It is known that a Boston lawyer had a copy of the Grand Jury proceedings in the Coleman case soon after Coleman had given his testimony. The lawyer had the record in his hands before Keliher returned to Boston, it is declared.

"Did Him Good Turn."

Keliher says that whoever gave out the record, did him a "good turn." From the transcript, "Big Bill" learned just what Colman had testified regarding the gambler's connection with the wreck-ing of the Cambridge bank. Colo-man's testimony tended to free Keliher of blame, and "Big Bill" says that for this reason his lawyer told him the gov-ernment had no case against him.

District Attorney Pelletier said:

United States District Attorney Asa P. French asked me for a copy of the transcript of the evidence be-fore the Grand Jury, and a copy was made for him. Later, Attorney Coak-ley asked for a copy, saying that it was no more than fair that his client, the defendant Keliher, should have a copy if the government was to have one. Mr. French got in touch with me on that and I told him that I had no objection to Attorney Coak-ley having a copy. Mr. French fur-nished a copy for Mr. Coakley."

United States District Attorney French said:

All I know is that the defence had knowledge of the Suffolk County Grand Jury proceedings before the case went to trial in the United States Court. Whether their knowledge was derived from a transcript of the Grand Jury proceedings of Suffolk County or not I do not know. I know they had a statement of some kind, but how cor-rect or how complete it was I do not know. I did not give it out, of course. Where they got it from I do not know.

Keliher's Proposal.

"Big Bill's" statement containing his proposal to the government authorities fol-lows:

My only object in making the state-ments that I have made to Keliher in his confession is to assist Receiver John L. Bates in recovering the stolen money of the National City Bank of Cambridge. Revenge and other mo-tives will be attributed to me. It am not above such motives, but the object of my statements to the receiver is solely to help the government. If what I have said injures my enemies, it is their fault and not mine. I am not sorry for them.

I feel that I can be of great service to the government in helping to bring to light the stolen money of the bank. I feel that I can also be of service to the government in disclosing graft in New York and Boston. I also feel that I can be of assistance to the Boston Bar Association in freeing the courts of law in the city of Boston from brib-ery and jury fixing.

It has often been said that a man's services are worth just what he values on them. I do not want money for mine. My wife and child are without means for their support, but I would rather see my wife with a pail and brush scrubbing floor than accept charity. All that I ask in return for my services is that the government meet me half way.

MISS MORELAND IS DIVORCED; TO WED GOODWIN?

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 6.—Nat Goodwin and Marjorie Moreland were here today rehearsing a new play.

"It's all news to me," said Goodwin. "I had not heard of Miss Moreland's divorce."

"Are you and Miss Moreland to be married?" he was asked.

"No," said Goodwin, positively so.

Miss Moreland could not be seen.

BALTIMORE, Md., Feb. 6.—Miss Mar-jorie Moreland, wife of Charles N. Doughty, has been awarded her divorce on the ground of desertion. Miss More-land, through Herman L. Roth, a New York attorney, told Judge Cox that Doughty left her in July, 1904, and has not supported or returned to her since.

Brookline Couple Wed Secretly in a Store Romance

A store romance was disclosed today when it became known that Miss Eileen E. Frazier, twenty-one, of No. 18 Atherton road, Brookline, is the bride of Joseph L. Mellroy, twenty-one, of No. 10 Davis avenue, Brookline.

Both worked in the same store. It was known that McElroy was attentive to Miss Frazier and when Miss Frazier asked her suitor to slip away with her for a secret wedding at the rectory of St. Paul's Episcopal Church, Brookline, she was somewhat surprised, but consented and promised to keep the secret. The secret was kept until the return of the marriage license made the wedding known.

Following the wedding they went to the home of Miss May Cooney, a friend. Doughty left her in July, 1904, and has where a secret wedding supper was served them.

POSTOFFICE BLOCK AT LANCASTER IS BURNED; $35,000 LOSS

LANCASTER, Feb. 6.—Three families were driven out in the freezing air, the local telephone service was crippled, and $35,000 damage was done when fire de-stroyed the postoffice block on Main street early today.

Citizens formed a bucket brigade and tried to help the firemen at the chemical apparatus. But the chemical apparatus and a bucket brigade were ineffective, as the building was in flames before an alarm was given.

Tenants on the second and third floors had narrow escapes. The family of Harris Gordon was in particular danger, but final-ly got to safety.

The postoffice block was a two-story wooden building, owned by G. E. Reed. On the ground floor were A. L. Safford's grocery store, Frank Gould's drug store and the postoffice. On the upper floors were tenements and clubrooms. The fire was discovered at 4 a. m. The cause is unknown.

How to Avoid Serious Kidney and Bladder Trouble

The serious forms of kidney or blad-der disease, such as Bright's disease, chronic rheumatism or dread diabetes, can be easily avoided if taken in time. The following simple formula should be taken as soon as first symptoms are no-ticed: Get six ounces best gin, add to it one-half ounce Mayer's Compound and one-half ounce fluid extract Buchu. Take one to two teaspoonfuls of this mixture after each meal and at bed time. It quickly stops irritation, inflammation, aches in the joints, dizziness and other symptoms of kidney disease, and in most cases one week's use of this remedy makes a decided improvement in the worst organic case. The ingredients can be procured from any druggist at little cost, are pure and are easily mixed. Be sure you get the genuine Mayer's Compound, which comes only in sealed wooden tubes, as any substitute will not give such good results. Advertisement.

WHAT DYSPEPTICS SHOULD EAT

A PHYSICIAN'S ADVICE.

"Indigestion and practically all forms of stomach trouble are, nine times out of ten, due to acidity; therefore stomach sufferers should, wherever possible, avoid eating food that is acid in its nature, or which by chemical action in the stomach develops acid. Elimination of such a rule eliminates most foods which are pleasant to the taste as well as those which are rich in blood, flesh and nerve building proper-ties. This is the reason why dyspeptics and stomach sufferers are usually so thin, emaciated and lacking in that vital energy which one only gets from a well built body. For the benefit of those sufferers who have been obliged to exclude from their diet all starchy, sweet or fatty foods, and are trying to keep up a miserable existence on gluten, peptonized beef extract, etc., I be-lieve it my duty to say that any food or foods which you may like, no matter how indigestible they are, can be made perfectly digestible and harmless by the use of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. They are a vegetable compound, and contain no acid which may be pres-ent, or which may be produced in the stomach. It is not a cathartic, but by its tonic action on the digestive organs it has no direct action on the stomach, but by taking away the cause of indiges-tion, sour stomach, dizziness, nervousness, bad complexion, bad breath, headache, etc., resulting from the acid irritation which they cause, the stomach itself is left in a healthy condition and can then digest any food that could possibly be eaten without distress. I believe this to be the most rational treatment for the use of medicine with-out necessity, but I must admit that I cannot see the sense of doing so following out pre-scribed stomach soda drugs instead of getting rid of the acid—the cause of all the trouble. Get a little Magnesarate Compound from your druggist, eat what you want at your next meal, take some of the Magnesarate Compound pre-scribed above, and see if I'm not right."—Advertisement.

CASSIDY SHOWS WHY 'MONKEY VEAL' IS UNFIT FOR USE AS PURE FOOD

Cassidy today discusses the recent statement of Dr. Chapin of Providence that "bob" veal is "all right" for food, "if you know what you're buying."

Cassidy does not agree with Dr. Chapin. He gives here some of his experiences with "monkey veal," and tells why he believes the law now on the statute books is a good one.

By HARRY P. CASSIDY.

The first work I did, when I came to Boston, was to read thoroughly our laws on food.

One of the most imperfect laws, or lax laws, or laws that served to protect the retailer at the expense of the consumer, one section stood out.

That was Section 74 of Revised Laws 56. It reads:

"Whoever kills, or causes to be killed, or knowingly sells, offers or exposes for sale or has in his possession with intent to sell for food, the veal of a calf killed when less than four weeks old, shall be punished by a fine of not more than one hundred dollars, or by imprisonment for not more than sixty days, or by both such fine and imprisonment."

There is one great flaw in that section. By the spirit of it is good. "Bob veal," "monkey veal," or "immature veal"—different names for the same thing, is unfit for human food.

What Butchers Say.

I was surprised therefore, the other day, when Dr. Chapin of Providence, who I believe, is a health officer in that city, made the statement, as reported in the newspapers, that "monkey veal" is all right.

The very name, "monkey veal," will take away the average man's appetite. Still, I thought that I would like to see how sentiment ran in Boston on the question. I visited half a dozen butchers, and asked them all:

"What do you think of 'monkey veal'?"

The answer was the same everywhere. They wouldn't handle it. When I asked what they thought of it, they replied that there was very little of it sold in Boston—that the inspectors were careful, and that small butchers would refuse to sell the stuff anyway.

That served to corroborate my own ideas on the subject. The law in Pennsylvania is strict, and I have helped enforce it.

Statement Ridiculous.

Dr. Chapin's statement, in the light of the experience of many of us, is ridiculous. Dr. Chapin says it is good to eat. The fact is that it often results in serious sickness when eaten. Dr. Chapin is something like Professor Sedgwick of the Institute of Technology, who testified that eggs are rotten that six drops killed a guinea pig were yet all right for human food.

I said there was a fault in the local law on immature veal. It lies in the word "knowingly." This word has no business in food laws anyway. The retailer should not be allowed to plead ignorance after he has sold the contaminated food. He should be forced to make it his business to know the nature of his wares.

But in an immature veal law, the word is superfluous. Any child can tell the difference of calf killing, after veal has been dressed, whether it comes from a calf under age, or not.

Weight Test Often Fails.

The local inspectors, I believe, go on the basis that veal weighing less than fifty-five pounds, is "monkey veal." Elsewhere, likewise, the inspectors have a weight limit as a test for veal. Yet this test often fails. For a Philadelphia cow has been known to weigh eighty pounds the day after it was born. Likewise, in Scotland, the farm where a calf a few days old has exceeded the legal weight for a three weeks' animal.

"Monkey veal" is recalled because after the baby calf is dressed its body looks curiously like that of a monkey. You can't differ with a calf's appearance. It's long, gawky legs and neck, and the unhealthy body. It surely looks like food—and it isn't. It is full of substances that lead to sickness.

The Counts Against It.

Just let me give you some of the counts against "monkey veal," and then say if you agree with Dr. Chapin that it is "all right."

First—It is almost impossible for a meat retailer to know the age of the calves he sells. The butcher may give him a guarantee, but he knows nothing of it. Chapin is something like Professor Sedgwick of the Institute of Technology, who testified that eggs are rotten that six drops killed a guinea pig were yet all right for human food.

Second—Monkey veal, before it is killed is thin, emaciated, soft and almost bathtowne in appearance. Its calves are taken from the mother and soon after they are born and fed on skim milk or slops or whatever they can pick up, till slaughtering time comes.

Third—The pitiful creatures are usually so badly frightened by their surroundings before they are killed that they are weakened and almost sick.

Contains Toxic Substance.

Fourth—German writers declare that monkey veal contains the germs of putrefaction, and toxic or poisonous substances exceedingly dangerous to the human system. This results in more the fatigue of the calf. It's weak intestinal walls do not hold their contents, and the active bacteria in the intestines and stomach escape into the blood and race through the whole body.

Fifth—After a calf is killed there is practically no one who can say with certainty whether it it two weeks old, or seven. Butchers cannot tell. Veterinarians and physicians can only guess.

These facts, I believe, establish the proposition that monkey veal is not fit food, show why it is not fit food, and point out the difficulty of ruling it out of the market.

Two Protective Methods.

There are, to my way of thinking, two methods by which the public could be absolutely protected from bob veal.

First—Instead of allowing anything over four weeks to be sold, increase the limit to the point where health is amply protected. Make the limit, for instance, eight weeks, or twelve weeks. Then let a weight test be established accordingly.

It may be argued that this method will entail a serious loss upon the butchers and keep off the market a great supply of meat. My answer is that no hardship is too great to ensure the public health—if the public health can be ensured.

Second—If you reject the above suggestion, establish either municipal abattoirs, or municipally inspected abattoirs, and require the registration or certification of each calf killed by the inspector, whose duty it shall be to convince himself the calf is of edible age.

If necessary he might require that the calf be kept at the slaughter house for four weeks and thus make absolutely safe.

But whatever method you adopt, it will not be denied by any person with a grain of feeling for the public health, that monkey veal is dangerous, and should not be sold for food.

Dr. Chapin may contradict me—but Dr. Chapin will find himself opposed to the weight of medical and lay opinion.

CASSIDY STOPS BAD MILK BILL IN LEGISLATURE

An attempt to slip through the Legislature a law allowing the use of formaldehyde, or emulsining fluid, in milk, has been discovered and blocked by Harry P. Cassidy.

The inception of the law seems to start with ex-Senator Martin P. F. Curley. The bill is a "joker," its meaning couched so fine that to the uninitiated, it would appear to be a highly commendable law.

The bill might be deemed a plan to discredit a young legislator, who made a good campaign last Fall and was elected by Ex-Legislators.

This man is Representative P. Joseph McManus. He was appointed a member of the Joint Committee on Agriculture, because of the interest he had shown in the subject matter of pure food.

McManus is an ardent advocate of all laws that make for proper protection of the public health. His was known as such a man during his campaign.

Curley, indirectly, suggested to McManus that a bill be introduced, PROVIDING THAT MILK WITH FORMALDEHYDE IN IT BE SO LABELLED.

McManus looked up the present law on the subject, and found that formaldehyde is not prohibited, by name, from milk, if it be labelled. As was doubtless intended, he saw in the proposed measure only a real attempt to protect the people.

Drafts a New Bill.

Therefore, he drafted and introduced the bill. Since doing this, however, McManus has been pulled out by him by Harry Cassidy. McManus, therefore, when the bill comes up before the committee of which he is himself a member, will immediately ask leave to withdraw it.

The attack upon the purity of Massachusetts milk has therefore failed.

But to simply check the progress of the bill is not enough. It is necessary also to identify the man who really wanted to adulterate milk. Whether his motive was to corrupt Massachusetts' milk supply, or to rob a young legislator of his district who had espoused the cause of pure food, cannot be told.

The bill in question is House Bill No. 836. It has been assigned to the committee on Agriculture and Public Health, sitting jointly. No date for a hearing has yet been set. It reads as follows:

An act to provide for the labelling of vessels and receptacles for milk or cream containing formaldehyde or other preservative.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives in the General Court assembled, and by the authority of the same, as follows:

Section 1. Whoever puts or causes to be put, formaldehyde, or any other preservative, into milk or cream, or sells, or causes to be sold, sold milk or cream in this Commonwealth, without first labelling the vessel or receptacle containing said milk or cream by tag or otherwise, printed in English, stating the time and place said preservative was put in said milk or cream, shall upon conviction thereof be punished by a fine not exceeding one thousand dollars.

Formaldehyde Prohibited.

To the average man that would look like an honest attempt to force retailers selling milk dropped with emulsining fluid to make known the fact to their customers. But as a matter of fact, the use of formaldehyde is prohibited in all antiseptics, and has been for years. It prohibited the use of formaldehyde in the Union, and by the Federal Government. Formaldehyde is embalming fluid—nothing less—and its effect on the stomach of children of invalids is too horrible to contemplate.

Formaldehyde is not good in milk, and cannot be under the present laws. In the opinion of City Milk Inspector James A. Jordan, however, the proposed law would allow the use of this preservative and embalmer. He said:

In revised laws 56, section 55, the sale of milk to which any foreign substance has been added is prohibited. Under this clause we have forbidden and prevented the use of formaldehyde. Formaldehyde is a preservative of the most absorbent nature, and is not countenanced anywhere today. If the proposed law went through, however, formaldehyde could be used if the bottles were labelled.

That being the situation on the bill itself, an investigation was undertaken by Cassidy to determine where the measure originated.

McManus, the Representative who had been induced to innocently introduce the bill, was questioned. He was astounded when the facts as to formaldehyde were given him. He said:

I looked up the food laws before I put this in. And as far as I saw formaldehyde was not referred. I did not interview Inspector Jordan and so did not discover the facts. I have always stood for pure and honest food and expect to do so throughout this session and my legislative service.

The bill I wrote at the suggestion of a very good friend of mine, Harry L. Donahoe of No. 1460 Tremont street, Roxbury. He said to suggest, ing it that the matter had been brought to his attention by ex-Senator Curley.

I introduced the bill in good faith. Now that I know what it is I shall ask leave to withdraw it when it comes up before the committee.

Another Innocent Victim.

The next step was to interview Donahue. He, too, had apparently been an innocent victim. He said:

I went up to see Mr. Curley for the purpose of getting from him an advertisement for a club running a dance in which I was interested.

Apparently Curley took me for a member of the Legislature, for he proceeded to tell me of his experiences as a member of the Senate. During the conversation he touched on the milk question.

He said that it would be a good idea for some young legislator to introduce a bill to prohibit the sale of milk containing formaldehyde unless marked to that effect.

I immediately thought of our friend, Representative McManus. I later saw McManus and told him of the suggestion of Senator Curley. I did not know that there are laws at present prohibiting the sale of any milk containing formaldehyde. I thought that such a bill as suggested by ex-Senator Curley would be to the interest of public health.

Ex-senator Curley was called on the phone. The following conversation followed:

"Mr. Curley, did you suggest to Harry L. Donahue the filing in the Massachusetts Legislature of a bill to allow the use of formaldehyde if the receptacles were labeled?"

"Yes, I did."

"Did you not know that for five years or more, in practically every State, formaldehyde has been absolutely barred from use?"

"No, I didn't know that."

"Did you know it was barred in Massachusetts?"

"No, I didn't."

"How did you happen to suggest this bill?"

"A little girl out our way was made sick, and they thought it was from something in the milk, so I thought there ought to be a law to forbid such things."

You were a member of the Legislature for a year?"

"Yes."

How Will You Have Your Beefsteak, Rare, Medium, or Not At All?

MEAT dealers of Boston have raised the prices of meat. They have lifted the C. O. D. thing on pig's feet and pate de foi gras, liver and lamb, cackle and grunt. They have hardened their heart a cent's worth on beefsteak and they're testing sort of irritated about pork chops. Wherefore—

How do you like your beefsteak —will you have it for dessert?
Will you have it set with diamonds and wear it in your shirt?
Or would you rather place it in your time-and-tide-proof vault,
Along with precious jewels, where no one can make assault?

How'll you have your bacon—and will you have it photographed
And hung it with the has-been crowd—with Teddy, Bryan, Taft?
Will you have your pork chops mounted in a diadem of gold,
Embellished round with gravy, with a fit quotation scrolled?

Will you have your sausage varnished bright and hung upon the wall,
Dwindling a cost of arms that decorates the hall?
Where other eyes cannot peer in or vulgar hands deface?

I say, how will you have your meat when present prices pall—
Will you have it very, very rare, or have it—not at all?

CASSIDY IS INDORSED BY COOKS' UNION

The local Cooks' Union has endorsed the work of the AMERICAN for pure food.

The chefs seek to put through the Legislature a bill for the licensing of cooks and bakers. No date for a hearing has as yet been assigned, but when a hearing is given it is expected that many will appear to support the bill.

The letter reads as follows:

Dear Mr. Cassidy:

The Cooks' Local Union No. 328 indorses your pure food work.

Our bill for the licensing of cooks and bakers has not yet been listed. Good and pure food may easily be spoiled, as you know, by improper cooking. The finding out who is a "cook" and who is not is quite a proposition, and we believe worthy of a place in your articles.

A cook should not cook knows whether food is fit to cook or not. Frozen products again, on thawing, are known to be unfit are recognized by the real cook, but they might easily be passed by one who claims to be a cook and is not.

Yours respectfully,
PAOLA CONTESTABILE,
Chef at the University Club
1 Winchester street, Boston.

MILK EXPERTS PLAN NEW DAIRY BOARD FOR BAY STATE

NEW YORK, Feb. 6.—A plan to place all dairy products in Massachusetts under a State Board of Animal Industries was discussed at a conference here of dairy experts appointed by the Governors of nine States from which this city's milk supply is chiefly derived. Massachusetts was well represented. A proposal to reorganize the Federal inspection of milk passing from one State to another, and to prevent the interstate shipment of inferior products was held in abeyance.

P. S. Harwood, member of the divisional Massachusetts State Dairy Board of Boston said:

Have you considered what this complicated inspection system is going to add to the cost of milk? We've had

RECORD PRICES ON FISH AS LENT BEGINS

T Wharf fell down flat on the fish supply on this, the first Thursday in Lent. The result was wild bidding among the wholesalers, record-breaking prices, especially for cod, and a smug profit for three boats that were in with fares.

There were less than 100,000 pounds of fish for the bidders. There should have been a million. For this is the big day of the year at T Wharf, the first Thursday in Lent, when buyers load up for the first Friday of Lent and the consequent demand for sea food.

As a sample of prices, steak cod became "fish de luxe." It was bid up to 19½ cents a pound wholesale, which means that the retailer will sell at not less than 30 cents and for as much more as he can get.

Talk is the record wholesale price for cod at T Wharf.

Other prices were: Market (small) cod, 9¼; haddock, 10¾; pollock, 8; bake, 3¾; cusk, 5½.

LOVE FOR DOG COSTS MRS. M'COY JEWELS

NEW YORK, Feb. 6.—When Mrs. Norman Selby (Nell McCoy) rode up town on the "L," she kept her pet toy Chihuahua dog warm by constantly rubbing its cold little nose. Her bag hung on a chain on her arm. It wasn't until she alighted from the train that she missed the bag. It contained a sapphire and diamond ring, a gold cigarette case, valuable private papers and a small sum of money. Mrs. Selby remembers two well-dressed women who crowded into a seat beside her and thinks one slipped a knife in the chain by which the bag hung from her arm.

MORE ENTRIES FOR HONORS IN THE VENUS CLASS

A French woman has said that if you take one hundred women with the same measurements they will have different figures. That is what makes the AMERICAN Venus contest so interesting.

The period of the greatest beauty in Venus is causing extensive discussion. What age is the famous Venus de Milo supposed to represent?

The Venus de Milo would seem to indicate that she had passed thirty, but many beauty experts hold that Venus would have to be better looking than shown in this statue to be classed as a beautiful woman in the twentieth century.

Competitors continue to send in their entries by the hundreds. Today is printed a picture of Miss Florence Pearson, No. 27 Harvard square, Charlestown. Her letter follows:

New Rival for Honors.

BRANDEIS WITH BRYAN IN THE WILSON CABINET

NEW YORK, Feb. 6.—The Times says today:

Secretary of State, William J. Bryan of Nebraska.

Secretary of the Treasury or Secretary of War, William McAdoo of New York.

Secretary of Commerce, Louis D. Brandeis of Massachusetts.

These three appointments President-elect Wilson has thrashed out of the ninety or more names suggested to him or which he himself has thought of for consideration. This information does not come from the Governor himself, who persists in his attitude of refusing to discuss the subject and will not admit he has any one definitely in mind for any post.

MONKS FIGHT OVER NAME OF JESUS

LONDON, Feb. 6.—While the question of the form of government to be arranged for the Mt. Athos community of monks is still a subject of discussion by the Powers, it is apparent that an early decision is urged, if the following dispatch to the Times from Salonika is correct: "Serious disorders have occurred in one of the smaller Russian sketes on Mt. Athos as a result of a discussion whether the name 'Jesus' is or is not divine. The monks divided into two parties, one of which chased the other from the monastery."

Chinese Celebrate Last Old-Time New Year Elaborately

Gone are the gongs, the chop-stick melodies, the fireworks, the black-and-red printed proclamations of posterycer from Chinatown. The ancient Chinese New Year's yesterday found Harrison avenue as quiet as a morgue. The adoption of the Gregorian calendar by the new Republic has found favor, and the ancient holiday is gone for good.

Tonight a banquet will be held in the headquarters of the Chinese Merchants' Association at which 2,500 Chinese residents of Boston and vicinity will be present. There will be addresses, music and the finest moon that the cooks of Chinatown can dish up.

Ninety per cent. of the Chinamen of Boston and vicinity have cut off their queues. Only the elders, men over fifty years, retain them. This is a tribute to their ancestors.

The removal of the queues is purely optional, but is regarded with approval by the new government.

Aeleans not conversant with Chinese holidays take it for granted that their New Year is or has been like ours—observed on a given date. This is wrong. The old Chinese New Year was somewhat like our Easter—likely to vary considerably in its date of celebration. Last year in China it began on the night of Saturday, February 17, and ended with midnight of February 24, or literally four and one-half days. During that time every place of business in China closed except hotels, bars and restaurants. Even the daily papers had to suspend because the printers are all Chinese.

TAFT FAVORS U. S. RAILWAYS FOR ALASKA

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—Government ownership of railroads in Alaska, with private operation under lease, was urged today by President Taft in a special message to Congress.

He recommends the construction by the government of two roads at an estimated cost of $35,000,000 to open the vast coal fields of the territory. The president's recommendations are based on the report, which he sent to Congress with the message, of the commission appointed August 12, 1912, "to examine into the transportation question in Alaska and to report on the best routes for railroads, which will develop the country and the resources thereof for the use of the people of the United States."

The commissions report advocates the construction of two railroad systems in Alaska. One to connect the Yukon and its tributaries, the Tanana, with the tide water and the other to be devoted to the development of the Kuskokwim and Susitna River districts. The president approves of this construction. The first of these railroads would cost about $20,000,000, and the second about $15,000,000. The two systems would involve about 733 miles of construction work.

It isn't what you pay for advertising that's big—advertising pays you. Advertising that pays is the only cheap advertising; advertising that doesn't pay is dear at any price. Ads printed in the AMERICAN pays best, therefore it is the cheapest.

FOUR IN FIGHT TO SUCCEED BARRY AS CAMBRIDGE MAYOR

Mayor Edward Barry of Cambridge, seeking a third term, is opposed in the race by four Democratic rivals, James T. Barrett, Charles H. Gaffney, James A. Montgomery and Michael M. O'Connell.

The primary election of February 18 will also line up eight candidates for assessor, forty-three for Aldermen, forty-seven for the Common Council and one for the School Committee, according to papers filed by the Democratic candidates.

My Husband Is Still Sober

We Are Doing Well Now Two Bottles of Renova Cured Him

So writes Mrs. Bowmans, of Watertown: Her experience is like that of hundreds of others and you can make it your own experience if you have a dear one who is a victim of intemperance. Read her letter: "Would you please send me some more of your cure-drug on Renova, as I have distributed all I had. My husband is still sober, two bottles cured him. We are doing well now. He travels nearly all the time and lives in the hotels and don't touch a drop." The woman who means business can have a sober husband. Just go to Riker-Jaynes' and get a package of Renova and put a little of it into his tea or coffee. Absolutely tasteless and harmless and given without his knowledge.

If you'd like to try it—free—before you buy a whole package, write in confidence to the Renova Co., 204 Broadway, New York, for a sample and proofs of what Renova does for victims of intemperance.

The Punderers

An adventure of the famous Captain Kettle

BY CUTCLIFFE HYNE

CAST OF CHARACTERS

Hamilton Fairfax.....A shipping clerk
Amy Rivers.....His fiancee
Captain Patrick Cambel.....A schemer
Captain Owen Kettle.....An adventurer
Theodore Shelf.....Rich and unscrupulous
Mrs. Shelf.....With social ambitions

What Has Gone Before

Captain Cambel, who has seen many adventures in many lands, creates a mild sensation in London society by the surprises his boat, Mr. Theodore Shelf, one day, by reminding him of an escapade in Barcelona, Shelf is at the head of Marmaduke, Rivers & Shelf, an apparently prosperous shipping firm, but one really in a bad way financially. Cambel tells Shelf that he alone knows of a deep ship's channel into the Florida Everglades. Shelf hints that the two can turn this knowledge to gain by a dangerous coup.

Mrs. Shelf has a serious clash with her husband over her extravagances. She pays no attention to his orders to retrench. Shelf unfolds to Cambel his plan to utilize the Everglade passage. It is to charter a ship, load it with specie, let the ship be lost—but have the specie saved.

Cambel goes in on the proposition on the condition that he receive half the profits and assume entire control. Shelf and Cambel offer Captain Owen Kettle, a dare-devil chap with a record of many hair-raising sea adventures, but who is in bad odor, without a ship, five hundred pounds to run the ship.

Now Go on with the Story

"I'm going to have money paid down in advance before I ring an engine bell on your blasted tramp of a steamer."

PART I.

"H" that's the game we've got about, is it? What old windjammer do you want me to lose now?"

"Sir!" thundered Shelf, lifting his voice for the first time. "This is pretty language. I would have you remember what a short time ago you were in my employ."

"And a fat lot of good it did me," retorted the sailor. "But," he added, with a sudden recollection that it is never wise of a master mariner to irritate any ship owner, "but, sir, I wasn't talking to you. I fancied it was Mr. Cambel here that was wanting to deal with me."

"Then your fancy carried you astray, Captain," said Shelf. "Come, come, shall let us get angry with one another. As I repeatedly impress on all who come in communication with me, there is never any good born out of words voiced in anger. Mr. Cambel has seen fit to mention a few of your—shall I say—eccentricities, just to show me—that we understand one another."

"To show he's got his knife to me, Mr. Shelf!"

"What a fractious pepper box it is," said Cambel with a laugh. "Man, dear, if I've got to be a shipmate with you for a solid month, d'ye think I'd put your back more up than necessary. If you remember me at all you must know I'm a deuce of a stickler to my own personal comfort and convenience. You can bet I haven't been failing at you through grim sarcasm—not but Mr. Shelf and I have got a yarn to bring out presently, which is a bit of, of course, tough fibered yarn, and we didn't want you to give it a top dressing of varnish. It's by the way of explaining that I pointed out to you that if we show ourselves to be sinners you needn't sing out that you find yourself in evil company for the first time."

Mr. Theodore Shelf had been shuffling his feet uneasily for some time. Cambel's method of speech jarred him to the verge of profanity. His own sanctimony was a garb which he never threw entirely away, at any moment. His voice had always the silv-duine of the conventional. His smug hypocrisy was a personal source of pride and comfort to him, without which he would have fell lonely and abandoned.

Shelf Glosses Things Over.

At this point he drew the conversation to his own hands. He had been about to blurt out that he always addressed the House of Commons as though it were the congregation of his own chapel, and he preached out his scheme of plunder, virilence and other moral uncleanliness with similar fervent unction. Cambel was openly amused, and once broke out into a mocking laugh. He was never at any pains to conceal his contempt for Mr. Theodore Shelf, which was more upsetting than judicious on his part. Kettle, on the other hand, wore the pockered face of a painted man. The combination of sea and criminality was not altogether new to Mm.

Men of his profession were very apt to behave like devils unbooted at sea and then grovel in clamorous piety among the pews of some obscure dissenting chapel the moment they ashore. It is a peculiar trait, but the average sea captain thinks that he can lay up a stock of fire insurance of this sort which will comfortable see him through future efforts. But in Kettle's mind shipowners were a vastly different class of beings, and so it never occurred to him that the same might apply to them.

In this attitude Captain Kettle listened to the sermon that was reeled out to him and rather gathered that the project that he was to take part in was in some obscure manner a missionary enterprise promoted solely in the honor and glory of Mr. Theodore Shelf's own particular narrow little deity, and had Mr. Shelf spoken any applicable pause between his sonorous periods Kettle would have felt it his own respectful duty to slip in a humble amen. But the dictator of the great shipping firm was too fearful of interruption from his partner to give any opening for a syllable of assent.

But if Captain Owen Kettle was unversed in the finer niceties of the art of hypocrisy he was a man of singular common sense, and by degrees it dawned upon him that Mr. Shelf's project, when depriced of its top dressing of religion, was in its naked state something very different from what he had at first been drawn to believe. As this view grew upon him the devotional drone dropped from the corners of his lips and his mouth grew to a hard, straight line somewhat to be distinguished among the curving bristles of hair which surrounded it. But he made no interruption, and drank in every word till the shipowner had delivered the code of his say. Then he uttered his decision.

Unburdens His Mind

"So, gentlemen, you are standing to partners over this precious business. And I'm standing to nothing. I'm a plain, broken man, with a wife and family, you naturally think you can buy me to work for you off the straight. Well, perhaps you can; it is possible; there isn't two ways of doing it, and of the two I like Mr. Cambel's best. When a man's a blackguard, it don't make him swallow any the sweeter for setting up to be a little bit saint. And I don't mind who I say that to."

"My good man," snarled Shelf, "do you mean to threaten me?"

"No, I don't; I just give you my opinion, ar from man to man, but because I respect myself. But I'm not going forward your chapel to shout it out to them that sit under you Sundays. They wouldn't believe me if I did—not now, at any rate. Besides, it wouldn't do me any good, and I couldn't afford it. I'm a needy man, Mr. Shelf, as you have guessed, and that's why I'm going to accept your offer. But don't let us have any misunderstanding between ourselves as what it foots up to be.

"What I'm going to work on for directly, when you hand me the papers, is a spell of piracy in the high seas, neither more nor less, and I'm going in to have money all paid down in advance before I ring an engine bell on your blasted tramp of a steamer. I guess that's fair enough. My family'll wait somethin' for me on wits if I'm caught, and if one's found out at this game it's just an ordinary hanging matter you see, sir, swing by the neck until I'm as dead as an axe, and may the Lord have mercy upon your unworthy clag of a soul. That's what this tea party means, and for a dirty five hundred pounds you're buying a live human body."

Five Hundred Thousand Pounds in Gold.

THE little red bearded man had gone, slamming the door nolselessly behind him. Shelf stopped his large, white face with a scented pocket handkerchief. "Do you think," he said nervously, "do you think we may trust him?"

"To begin with, we've got to know whether we like it or not. He's nothing to gain by playing traitor."

"What would he have us in case of success?"

"Perhaps," said Cambel. "He won't have the chance. Other hands on that steamer will have to compete for respect in whole or in part. Perhaps they won't all of them come through it alive. If you remember, two and three years ago piracy on the high seas you will recognize there is precedent for a considerable percentage of casualties."

The city man shuddered. Through the double windows came the sullen roar of a London street, and in the imagination he seemed to distinguish the howl of the crowd joined in execration against him.

His eyes fell upon a paper on the desk. It was the formal notice from her bankers that his wife's account was heavily overdrawn. He lifted the paper and tore it with his teeth; then smote the table so that pegners flew from the inkwell. But he had been found an outlet in words. He spoke in his platform voice and said nothing about the gorsue compelling force.

"We will not talk of these unpleasant details, if you please, Mr. Cambel. I—my heart is weak, I think, and they turn me sick, ill, at whatever cost, we must go through with the affair. It is necessary that I make a heavy coup within the next month, or the consequences may be disastrous."

"Marmaduke, Rivers & Shelf will go down? I also am at the end of my cash balance, as that mother seems to be the impelling power for each of us. And, after all, I suppose it's natural. Out of fiction men don't gamble with their necks for the sheer amusement of the thing. They either do it for the love of place, or the love of woman, or the love of gold, and of the three the last is the best to go for with, because with it you can buy the others. But, come now, wake up, sir, and let's get on with the business. As you have guessed, and that's why I'm going to accept your offer. But don't let us have any misunderstanding between ourselves as what it foots up to be.

HANDS CHAPPED CRACKED OPEN

Every Winter. At Last Used Resinol. Immediate Relief. Trouble Gone.

St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 24, 1912.—"I have been troubled every winter for years with chapped hands. They would crack open at the finger ends, and at the side of the joints on the index fingers. These places were quite painful. I tried everything I knew of, but with only temporary success. I commenced using Resinol Soap and Resinol Ointment last winter, and after the first application found immediate relief, and continued using them for a month, and was not troubled any more." (Signed) J. A. Bruffee, 740 Aubert Ave.

When the Resinol treatment has once cleared away these distressing skin affections, the regular use of Resinol Soap prevents their return. Resinol is specially effective for itching, burning eruptions, pimples, dandruff, burns, old sores and piles. Sold by all druggists. For free samples write to Dept. D-T, Resinol Chem. Co., Baltimore, Md.

The Manicure Lady

By WILLIAM F. KIRK

"WELL, George," said the Manicure Lady, "I guess that Mister Edison has put a kind of a crimp in a lot of actors since he has completed that there new machine called the kinetophay, or whatever is the name of it, the one that shows them moving pictures and makes the actors all talk at the same time. Gee, and I just got two swell new actor customers that has got in the way of coming in to have their nails did."

"It will seem kind of lonesome," said the Head Barber, "if Mister Edison's machine is so good that it crowds all the actors out of the game. Won't it seem lonesome on the nice warm Spring days when we miss the hundreds of nice dressed goats that is just back from the previnces?"

Wilfred's Imaginings

"Wilfred was wordering if he couldn't get to be an actor now," said the Manicure Lady. "The poor boy always imagined that he had a lot of dramatic genius and that he could play sad parts great, if it wasn't for the facing of a audience, and I guess he could, because he has the saddest voice you ever listened to when he is asking the old goat for another five to take him over until he can get a check for some poems from some editor.

"He was saying last night that his looks and voice ought to fit in great for a moving picture that showed both, and he even went that enthused that he got bold enough to hint to the old goat about the carfare to the place where a lot of them is rehearsing now. The old goat looked at him kind of amused, the way a big dog looks at his little puppy that is just crumbling around and learning how to walk.

"Well, the moving pictures have sure hurt the Hamlets and Othellos a lot," said the Head Barber. "It seems to me the lot of actors to get disappointed. Even when I was a little kid, and there wasn't any moving pictures, I remember seeing any number of fine looking fellows walking through our little town along the railroad tracks. My old man told me they was actors walking back home. Now, I don't know what in the world is going to become of them."

"Oh, I suppose they will get along somehow," said the Manicure Lady. "But think of all the little village girls that love to go to the matinees and worship the leading man. There won't be many matinee idols left in a year or so, and them girls will have to content themselves with flirting with home talent and marrying the rising young bank clerks and the earnest young barbers and college boys. Gee, but the world is changing a lot, isn't it, George?"

Doughnuts Going Up

"Some parts of it is," admitted the Head Barber, "but it's funny that with all the changes the price of doughnuts and the other necessary things of life keeps kind of shooting to the sky. That's the only change that stings me. Why couldn't Edison have invented some kind of patent food made out of electricity, so everybody could eat as cheap as they breathe? That would have been a better discovery than something to do actors out of their jobs, and think how much the actors would have been pleased."

"Maybe that will come, George," said the Manicure Lady. "But in the meantime, before the electric food arrives, me for the manicure chairs and some steamed pudding. If any gent comes, tell him I have went to lunch."

Don't Wait

For Spring to come, but begin to build up your system now by cleansing your blood of those impurities that have accumulated in it during the winter.

To build up the system now will help you through the sudden changes of weather at this season and very likely save you from serious sickness later.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

is the medicine to take. It purifies the blood and renews the strength.

In the usual liquid form or in the tablets known as Sarsatabs.

Up-to-the-Minute Jokes

"You give me a pain," said the man with the sallow complexion.

"Glad to hear it," said the other, cheerfully. "You know my business is writing advertisements for patent medicines."

* * *

First Man: "How do you do?"

Second Man: "Beg pardon, but you have the advantage of me."

First Man: "Yes, I suppose I have. We were engaged to the same girl; but you married her."

"I'm afraid I haven't many good arguments for our side of the question," said the country committee.

"No arguments!" responded his agent. "Then quote statistics. They sound wise and everybody would rather take them for granted than try to understand them."

Gladys—You used to part your hair so nicely, Reggie. Why do you wear it slick out a parting now?

Reggie—Life is such a rush nowadays, I've no time to comb it.

"THIS IS THE AGE OF SHAPELY WOMEN," SAYS GREAT ARTIST

Prima Donna Whose Figure Created Furore Tells How a Form May Be Rounded Out and Beautified.

Yvette Furroso, famous operatic star, writes interestingly on Beauty of Form in Fashion World. She says, "This is the age of shapely women. No longer is it necessary for our sex to go through life shapeless and flat chested. The use of the Vaucaire method every woman can attain her fancied dream of a beautiful figure."

The Vaucaire treatment is prepared by mixing a syrup with one and a half cupfuls sugar and a pint of water, into which is stirred an ounce of gallol. Two teaspoonfuls before meals accelerates the blood's circulation and the underlying tissues then gradually assume their true proportions. —Advertisement.

Give Man a Dog's Brain; Patient Is on Way to Recovery

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Feb. 6.—With the brain of a dog in the place of his own, which was diseased, W. A. Smith of Kalamazoo is in the University Hospital with a fair chance of recovery, after one of the most remarkable operations ever performed.

Smith had been suffering from an abscess of the brain. It had been known to medical science that organs from another person or animal could be transplanted and life saved thereby, so it was decided to try this in an effort to save Smith's life.

His skull was opened and the diseased portion of the brain removed. In its place was substituted the brain of a dog.

BOYS SCARRED FOR LIFE DURING HAZING PRANK

WORCESTER, Feb. 6.—The faces of Charles N. Lawrence, Jr., and Alfred Shaw of the South High School junior class are burned and may be scarred for life from nitrate of silver, a powerful caustic, which was applied by a band of seniors, who passed their victims. The class numerals, "17" of the captors were burned in large size on the backs of their hands.

Both Lawrence and Shaw have been dismissed from school by Principal Edward M. Woodward on the ground that their appearance interferes with discipline. Young Lawrence has to wear a mask. But Shaw is burned the worse.

As the hazing took place outside of school hours the school authorities say it is out of their jurisdiction and that the parents of the branded boys will have to go to law if they wish redress. Young Shaw says that his family has turned the case over to a lawyer. He is the son of Mrs. Lillian I. Shaw of No. 25 Bowdoin street. Lawrence's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Lawrence of No. 55 Bowdoin street.

Pastor Admits Son Did It.

The Rev. McLeod Harvey, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, freely admits that it was his own son, Kreider Harvey of the senior class, who applied the caustic to Shaw and Lawrence, while they were in the grasp of Harvey's classmates. Pastor Harvey says: "My son handled the caustic and I am heartily sorry it happened so—just as sorry as are the parents of the boys who had the stuff applied to their faces."

Mrs. Charles E. Lawrence, mother of the Lawrence boy, says: "They went too far. I would not have thought it wrong if the seniors had resorted to some fun that would not cause injury or pain. I cannot tell yet what the outcome will be."

Mrs. Lawrence Indignant.

Mrs. Lawrence is indignant that the victims of the hazing are temporarily barred from school, while the perpetrators of the hazing are school stars and are not punished, so far as known.

The hazing took place on the afternoon of the senior and junior banquets, which were held at different hotels. Young Lawrence was caught on Main street right after school Tuesday. His face was covered with black grease paint. Then he was rushed into a Main street luncheonette where the caustic was applied.

Shaw was caught on Franklin street, was taken to the Hotel Warren, where the senior banquet took place, and was hazed there.

PHYSICIANS SAY WHOLE COUNTRY IS DEBILITATED

H. B. Thompson of 31 Temple Street, Boston, made the following statement after having taken Tona Vita for a few weeks:

"Ten months ago, from a sound, healthy man, I became debilitated and nervous. I was not sick enough to take to my bed, but was always worn out and tired. To do the most trifling things was an effort, and my nerves were on edge all the time. I would wake up even more tired than I was when I went to bed.

"For some time I was reading about this new tonic, Tona Vita, but feared to try it because I had tried so many medicines before without avail. However, I purchased a bottle, and must say that I found it to be an excellent tonic. I soon gained relief from my nervous and tired feelings and am growing more like my old self every day. I give the entire credit to Tona Vita."

"Mr. Thompson's symptoms denoted that he was just in the initial stages of nervous debility," remarked one of the Tona Vita experts. "Other symptoms are constant twitching, extreme dizziness, pains shooting through the back and head, loss of ambition and energy.

"The chief danger of nervous debility lies in the fact that it can show itself in so many ways that people sometimes mistake the ailment for something else. Tona Vita, which is a collaboration of some of the world's greatest pharmacists, has been especially put on the market to battle nervous debility.

"The demand for Tona Vita in the Boston drug stores is growing every day."

Mary Garden Defines Love Would Wed No Opera Star

MARY GARDEN.

Singer Replies to Mrs. Wagstaff's Diatribe on the Tender Emotion, Has Lost 22 Lbs., but No an Ounce of Her Heart; It Is Still Free.

NEW YORK, Feb. 6.—"Love is the creative force of the world. It is the one spark between animalism and divinity."

Mary Garden, in one of her wonderful moods—full of the joy of "simply being" as she expressed it—thus began today to make a critical analysis of Mrs. Blanche Shoemaker Wagstaff's article in a current monthly on "Is love a symptom of degeneration?"

"All great deeds in the world," said Miss Garden, "have been inspired through love, from the beginning of things until now 'cherchez la femme' of the French is their way of saying that love is at the bottom of all endeavor.

"What Mrs. Wagstaff says is not condemning of her sincerity even in her argument that love is the trade of the unhealthy mind of the illogical dreamer, the somadic.

"Marriage a Parasitism."

"Sophistry or even philosophy and logic of any age or brand, will not banish the divine inspiration of love in the world. Mrs. Wagstaff herself would find very little inspiration in life if she believed in her heart of hearts what she would have others think are her real views on love.

"She says that marriage is a process of absorption—a lawless parasitism. She is partly right. Marriage is a lawful parliament and I also concede that marriage is a martyr to excessive monogamy.

"Growth—attainment of the gobal ideals, is denied to the married people who to their smug self-sufficiency express no living influence that would urge them to progress within their own souls.

"Such married couples as Mrs. Wagstaff describes are the mediocrities of life who would be bigger nuisances to humanity out of marriage.

Won't Wed Singer.

"Instead of being a cougar well done away with in so far as the world is concerned, they would be making themselves bores in two places instead of boring each other remote from the rest of us.

"Mrs. Wagstaff has taken up the never-to-be-settled question of love and has added little of worth to the discussion. She has treated the subject in the most unfeminine of ways, opposed to her own aesthetic theory."

In quieting a rumor that a noted singer was devoting his attentions to her, Miss Garden declared she would never marry an opera singer even if it were to be the last Act of renunciation' of her life, has said that she detested the personal mentality of the professional male singer.

SUFFRAGETTES AROUSED OVER DEPORTATION

LONDON, Feb. 6.—Declaring that the womanhood of England had been insulted by the suggestion made in the House of Commons last night that militant suffragettes be deported, Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, leader of the violent wing of the Women's Social and Political Union, urged her followers on to fresh violence today.

"I did not make the suggestion seriously," said Sir Arthur Markham, its author, "but doubtless many people wish I had. I merely asked Home Secretary Reginald McKenna if he would consider the question of deporting these violent women in order to make London safe for law-abiding citizens.

"Home Secretary McKenna did not take the question seriously, but asked where I thought the militant women might be sent. On the spur of the moment I replied, 'St. Helena.' In view of the general laughter which greeted my passage, I am sure that no member regarded it as more than a joke."

Mrs. Inspard, one of the chief lieutenants of Mrs. Pankhurst, has sent a letter to Queen Mary asking for an interview in behalf of the "cause." However, as Queen Mary is known to be bitterly opposed to woman suffrage, it is far from likely that an audience will be granted.

SUFFRAGETTES TO HAVE OWN BANK

NEW YORK, Feb. 6.—The suffragettes of the country are to have a bank of their own. After many attempts and plans made from time to time by Lady Cook, Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont and others to establish a national bank, Mrs. Stanley McCormick, a member of the wealthy McCormick family of Chicago, has prepared a plan which she believes will make possible a banking institution, managed and controlled entirely by women.

This plan is to be announced at a Carnegie Hall meeting on February 17. The meeting will be held under the auspices of the National Suffrage Association, of which Mrs. McCormick is a vice-president. She will tell about the plan at the meeting.

SUFFRAGE SETBACK IN VERMONT HOUSE

'Blind Tom' Devours 11 Pounds of Steak, Etc., and He Wins $50

NEW YORK, Feb. 6.—"Blind Tom" O'Neill, who has sold newspapers at No. 920 Grand street for twenty-two years, has an India rubber stomach which won him a $50 bet from his friend, Captain Jack Cooley. If you think it was "easy money," just scan this list of eatables that "Blind Tom" devoured to prove Captain Jack's stomach can't stretch as far as his:

Eleven pounds of beefsteak.
Two pounds of bread.
Eight large fresh potatoes.
One quart of gravy.
Six green peppers.
Four red onions.
Six bottles of beer.

Captain Jack quit after eating ten pounds of steak.

Planning Wireless Round World from Bay State Station

NEW YORK, Feb. 6.—Massachusetts is to be the location of one of the great wireless stations in the chain of eight for spanning the Pacific Ocean and encircling the globe.

That preparations have been practically completed for this feat became known today with the announcement of a contract for the eight wireless stations, to be the most powerful in the world, that has just been placed by the Marconi Wireless Telegraph Company with the J. G. White Engineering Company of the city. Stations are to be at Cabo, in the Sandwich Islands, Tamales Bay and Bolinas, Cal., near Bolinar, N. J., and one in eastern Massachusetts.

DARTMOUTH REGRETS LOSS OF HARVARD FOOTBALL CONTEST

BOSTON AMERICAN SPORTING NEWS

M'CARTY NOT WILLING TO BATTLE LEADING WHITE RING STARS

Ah, Yes! Our Happy Home

Copyright, 1913, by the International News Service

By George McManus

DARTMOUTH GAME TOO LATE AND TOO HARD, SAYS HARVARD PRESS

The Harvard Alumni Bulletin in an editorial declares that the football authorities at the college were acting within their rights when they decided not to have the Harvard eleven clash with Dartmouth on the gridiron this Fall. The editorial in part is as follows:

"There are no vested rights to a place on the Harvard football schedule, and Harvard has no thought of a vested right to a place on the schedule of any other college. It has always been taken for granted in Cambridge that any team might decline to play Harvard, and we have assumed that we have a similar privilege. There is no obligation on either side. This year the Dartmouth eleven has sent word that it does not care to play Harvard next Fall, and therefore Amherst will not appear on the Harvard schedule, but though the loss of this game causes regret in Cambridge it has given no offence.

"The reasons which have convinced our football committee that it would be unwise to play a game with Dartmouth next year are simple and are not new. The chief ambition of Harvard in intercollegiate sport is to win its contests with Yale, and the schedules in football, baseball, track and rowing are made up with that object always in view.

"For many years Harvard football men have believed that the Dartmouth game, although furnishing excellent sport, has on the whole lessened our chances of defeating Yale a week later, for the Dartmouth eleven have been well coached and have played a strong, hard game. Moreover, this game, being the last and most important on the Dartmouth schedule, has been attended with a public interest and excitement which have reacted on the Harvard players quite as much as the physical exertion.

"Harvard has been reluctant to give up the game, because it was a good sporting event and because of a genuine desire to meet all comers in every kind of intercollegiate athletics, but the experience of the past two or three seasons has confirmed and strengthened the belief of Harvard football players, coaches, trainers and physicians—especially that of Dr. E. H. Nichols, who has been responsible for the condition of the men on the squad—that the Dartmouth game was a hindrance rather than a help in the development of the eleven for the Yale game.

DARTMOUTH "REGRETS" LOSS OF HARVARD GAME

HANOVER, N. H., Feb. 6.—The "Dartmouth," the official paper of the undergraduates, in an editorial states that Harvard was justified in dropping the game with the Green. The "Dartmouth" regrets very much that the Crimson athletic authorities were forced to make this move on account of its already hard schedule. It says:

"Because they but come to believe that the annual clash with Harvard provided the Crimson team with the best possible preparation for its final game with Yale, Dartmouth men learn with surprise that Harvard finds it necessary to drop the Dartmouth game next Fall in order to play a less exacting schedule.

"It is true that Dartmouth teams have grown stronger in recent years, and that by closing their season at the Stadium they have well tested the mettle of the Harvard teams.

Harvard in the Right.

Probably Dartmouth's view that the game was a help and not a hindrance, is due to her own lack of hard games before the climax of the season. The coaches have repeatedly stated that Dartmouth teams suffer through lack of enough hard mid-season contests.

The men learn much of formation and rule, but lack the test of hard experience, and are liable to fall of highest power when it is most needed.

We recognize Harvard's right to arrange a schedule suited to her needs, yet we cannot refrain from expressing regret that excessive demands upon her team made it necessary to omit a game which would seem to have become a fixture in New England sport.

Harvard and Dartmouth alike have been consistent and untiring in their efforts to maintain only the highest ideals of sport, and we believe that it can be fairly stated that no game of football is cleaner and better played. It is simply because the game has afforded good football that it has attracted capacity crowds from the friends and alumni of both institutions. Thus if in the last league lower in football has expressed general regret that the game is not to be played next season.

Regrets Loss of Contest.

The "Dartmouth" for the college, moreover, expresses regret that Dartmouth is not to meet on the gridiron an opponent whose methods have always been so fair and whose spirit so generous.

The omission of the game necessitates a rearrangement of the Dartmouth schedule, a task indeed difficult, because most other schedules have already been completed, but there is reason, however, in confidence that the schedule will at length be satisfactorily reconstructed.

M'CARTY DODGES BOUTS WITH THE LEADING 'HOPES'

By JACK CONWAY.

"If I defeat Al Palzer I will be willing to clash with any white heavyweight in the world who is considered good enough to give me a hard battle." This terse statement was made by Luther McCarty, the king of the "white hopes," on the eve of his struggle with Palzer.

It is now history how McCarty battered the lowa farmer around the ring for eighteen rounds until the uneven contest was stopped by the referee in order to save Palzer from taking an unmerciful beating and ultimately going to the mat for the final count.

McCarty, however, has changed his views on what a boxer should do since he gained so much glory by vanquishing Palzer. When he was trying to obtain recognition in the ring, he was eager to clash with all comers, but he is now taking extraordinary care in selecting his opponents.

After McCarty had won from Palzer, a McCarty-Willard match was suggested. Willard is a big, strong heavyweight who does not know a whole lot about the art of self-defence, but has the distinction of winning from McCarty in a ten-round bout in New York.

McCarty Has Improved a Great Deal.

Billy McCarney, however, refused to let his protege mingle with Willard. The sporting public naturally claimed that McCarney was afraid that McCarty would be defeated.

Personally I believe that Willard would be easy for McCarty today. He might hold his own with the white champion in a ten-round contest but I am of the opinion that if the men were to meet in a long battle McCarty would simply wear Willard out. The years of age and has been improving steadily. He is 50 per cent better today than he was when he met Willard.

There is another heavyweight battler who is also anxious to get a date with McCarty. He is Bombardier Wells, a quiet, unassuming young man who is the heavyweight champion of England. The Briton is well known to American fight "fans."

Wells fought Palzer in New York last year and the latter won by a knockout in the third round. But if those two men were to meet again the boxer from across the Atlantic would undoubtedly be made a it to i favorite.

There is not a white heavyweight in the ring who is as scientific as Wells. He was not in the best of condition when he entertained Palzer. He realized that he would have to win by a knockout in a few rounds or go down to defeat.

Consequently Wells started after his opponent in the first round and made him look like an amateur. He also gave him a terrible lacing in the second chapter and at one time had Palzer almost out. The fast pace told on the English champion and he was completely exhausted when he came from his corner at the opening of the third stanza and was knocked out by Palzer after a short rally.

Wells Is Wonderful Boxer.

Wells would probably make things interesting for McCarty in a short ruffles. His speed and boxing ability might trouble him to hold the Western cow puncher at bay for ten rounds. In a long fight there would be nothing to it but McCarty. He has the build and physique to stand the strain of a hard, drawn-out battle and would not experience a great deal of difficulty in landing a dream punch inside of the limit.

The Englishman has a frail frame and is not strong. He owes his success in the ring to his skill as a boxer and his wonderful speed. Wells also takes grand care of himself, and besides being a sterling boxer is a typical gentleman and a credit to the sport which he has chosen for a profession.

SIDELIGHTS ON SPORTS

By A. H. G. MITCHELL

THE plan of President Murphy of the Chicago Nationals to start all home games at 2 o'clock will be watched with a good deal of interest by other club owners, as well as the baseball public generally. To start ball games so early in the afternoon is considerable of an innovation, and many a wise old baseball man will shake his head and predict disaster to the plan.

But will it spell disaster?

It is noticed that when there is a double-header the crowd is on hand when the fun begins. In Boston double-headers beginning as early as 1:30 o'clock have opened to packed grounds. Of course, a double-header is supposed to draw the baseball bargain hunters. It is a question whether the regular patrons can arrange their affairs so that they can reach the grounds as early as 2 o'clock. The question of starting ball games early can be argued well from both sides of the fence.

OUR Boston games are started at 3:15. This early hour is owing to the fact that Fenway Park and the South End grounds are within easy reach. In other cities the ball parks require from half an hour to an hour to reach from the business centers. In New York and Brooklyn the time for starting the games has been 4 o'clock, and for many years the games at Washington did not begin until 4:30 o'clock.

In New York the reason given for the late start was that it might give the "Wall street brokers" time to reach the grounds after the close of the Stock Exchange. There has always been a great play made in New York to the "Wall street" crowd. There are many persons in New York that believe that the club would draw larger attendances if the management ignored the Wall street element and played for the common people. Games at the Polo Grounds seldom end before 6 o'clock, and few of the patrons are able to get home "in time for dinner."

IN Washington the idea of the late start was to give the government employes a chance to see the games, the government offices generally closing at 4 o'clock. Last year the games were started earlier, and the crowds broke all records, but of course Griffith's team was going like a house a-fire, and this fact may have accounted for the big attendances. Still, it was shown that there are enough people in Washington to fill the grounds without the aid of the government employes.

THE Philadelphia Sporting Writers' Association, which does things up brown when it gives a banquet, held its annual function the other night, and had as its principal guest President William H. Locke of the Phillies. When it comes to speechmaking, Connie Mack, not being able to escape the sharp eyes of the toastmaster, was called upon, and the tall, quiet leader of the Elephants, in his own quiet way, gave a brief glimpse of what may be expected in the coming American League clash.

Connie said that as the second division clubs of the American had greatly strengthened, the coming tussle for the flag should prove to be decidedly interesting, but that he had great faith in his own Athletics, and expected them to be fighting it out with any club which cherished championship aspirations.

That's about the way we felt about it up in this corner of the Union, Connie. All we are waiting for is the gong.

N. E. A. A. U. Plans to Press "Pro" Charges Against Withington

There is more than a likely prospect that the case of Paul Withington, the famous Harvard athlete, and with special attention to his career as a wrestler, will engage the active attention of the N. E. A. A. U. in the near future. Withington's status was discussed only a short time ago at a meeting of the registration committee of the New England body and placed in abeyance for further investigation.

Now it appears that at a meeting of the wrestling committee of the association it was decided to press the charges against him at the meeting of the board of governors, which will be held the first Monday in March.

Advice to the Heart Hungry
The Unreasonable Husband

Dear Editor:—

My husband, once so kind and loving, seems to be provoked at me. He insists upon having at least one hot dinner a week and complains of being tired of cold ham, my favorite dish. Club duties absolutely prevent me from preparing his meals as I was in the habit of doing before becoming an active member in eighteen social organizations. How shall I deal with such an unreasonable man?

WOMAN SUES O'NEILL AND HIS TRUST COMPANY

The affairs of George Livingstone Richards, the former go-cart-pole wizard, who skipped to London five years ago, leaving a trail of detectives and lawsuits, were again aired in the Superior Court today when Maria L. Parker, now Maria Parker-son of New York city, brought suit for $40,000 damages against Joseph H. O'Neill, president of the Federal Trust Company, and against the company itself.

She states that on December 26, 1908, Richards, owner of a majority of the stock of the Agnew Auto Mailing Machine Company, a Boston corporation, asked her for a loan of $25,000 on the promissory note of the company, indorsed by Richards, he, according to her statement, referred her to Mr. O'Neill as to his financial standing.

President O'Neill that day, the plaintiff alleges, intending to induce her to deliver the $25,000 to Richards and the Agnew Company, represented to her that Richards and his company were of good financial standing and credit, and concealed from her that fact that several prominent notes of Richards and of the Agnew Company had been protested and dishonored.

The plaintiff brings similar charges against the Federal Trust Company as an individual.

THREE FIRES IN TILTON'S VICINITY

TILTON, N. H., Feb. 6.—Three fires broke out today within a radius of ten miles of Tilton. The largest was in Belmont, six miles away. The dwelling and barn of M. A. Berry were burned to the ground, with a loss of $2,000. Laconia was asked for aid, but had a fire of its own and could not respond. A second barn across the road from the Berry residence was saved. In Tilton the dwelling and barn of Thomas Devanney were burned to the ground, with a loss of $1,500. Mrs. Devanney, sixty, who has been sick in bed for a week, had to be carried out of the building.

Rector in Pamphlet Lays Down the Law to "Stay at Homes"

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Feb. 6.—Parishioners who stay away from church are taken to task in a little church pamphlet which has just been issued by the Rev. W. E. Daw, rector of St. Peter's Episcopal Church, at Spotswood, one of the oldest parishes in the State. Here are some of the reasons set forth and comment thereon:

"Don't like the preacher. Well, my friend, if you were a preacher somebody wouldn't like you. Strange to say, some don't like Christ.

"Swindon is a hypocrite; I won't go where he goes." Then you should by all means prove you are not. "Judge not that ye be not judged."

"Wife won't go; husband won't go; don't like to leave wife or husband home alone." No husband or wife has a right to be a bad example to the other.

"I've been snubbed." Then why not quit all business?

"The church isn't sociable; they are all cliques." Be sociable yourself, then. Their sins are no excuse for yours.

NEW YORK—Charles A. Gardner, an apartment house fireman, fell eight stories through a dumb waiter shaft and suffered only the loss of his temper.

WASHINGTON—Tuberculosis will be practically stamped out in seventy years unless the disease is stamped out at once, declares Dr. Emil Krulish.

WASHINGTON—A call for the condition of national banks at the close of business February 4 was issued today by Comptroller of the Currency Murray.

FREDERICK, Md.—After being convicted of beating his wife Robert Phillips, a white man, was handcuffed to the bars of a jail window and given fifteen lashes.

MINNEAPOLIS—Lucius P. Hubbard, formerly Governor of Minnesota and a veteran of the Civil War, is dead at the home of his son, C. P. Hubbard, aged seventy-seven.

WASHINGTON—The first checks paid to pensioners under the new system, which abolished the eighteen agencies in various parts of the country and united them here under one head, have just gone out, and all of the more than three hundred thousand due this month were in the mail on time.

TO-DAY'S STOCK MARKETS

Stock markets opened dull and prices had a downward tendency today. In Boston Gle big drop in the warrants marked in London justified the demand for cuts per shares. The local market began with prices unchanged or lower. In London the volume of business was limited and irregularity prevailed. The New York market can be described in the same terms.

One explanation of the great decline this week in London speculative copper quotations is the expectation that the coming statement of the copper companies for publication will be unfavorable from the trade point of view.

Trading Dull at New York Opening.

Business was dull when the New York market opened and few stocks were traded, as to any extent. Initial price changes had little significance. There was no settled tendency and prices were irregular at the start.

The report that copper metal is being offered by second hands a cent a pound under the price asked by big selling agencies had a depressing effect upon shares of copper mining companies. They were among the weakest issues. There was some demand for Harriman stocks around the opening, and they rose fractionally.

American Tobacco did not benefit in speculation by the $6,000,000 dividend declaration yesterday. It declined 1½ to 282 at the opening. Among the other dividends were Amalgamated Sugar ¾, Central Foundry ¾, American Telephone & Telegraph ¾, Atlantic Coast Line Railroad ¾, New York Metropolitan common ¾, Inter-Metropolitan preferred ¾, Great Northern preferred ¾, Norfolk & Western ¾, Utah Copper ¾, Western Union ¾, and Republic Iron & Steel ¾.

Pennsylvania opened unchanged, but soon called. Canadian Pacific advanced ¾ after opening unchanged. Active advances included California Petroleum ¼, Southern Pacific ¾, United States Steel ¼ and C. & O. ¼. Steel was ¼ lower.

The Curb was dull.

Operations in London were firm but quiet.

Harriman Lines Dissolution Terms.

A plan for the dissolution of the Union Pacific-Southern Pacific merger has been agreed upon with the approval of the United States Attorney General. It will be presented at a meeting of the directors of the two roads today.

A syndicate composed of Kuhn, Loeb & Co., the National City Bank, the Deutsche Bank interests, and other leading banks and private bankers here and abroad has underwritten the offering of Union Pacific's $126,000,000 block of Southern Pacific stock to the shareholders of both companies.

Payment for the stock according to the present plan, is to be made in instalments. The price is understood to be 100 to the pound, or $5 per share. There will be a bankers' commission of 1 per cent. In other words the company is assured of 97 for the stock not taken up by subscribers of the stockholders.

It is understood that in all probability the Southern Pacific shareholders will be allowed to subscribe to one share of Southern Pacific for each three shares which they now hold, and the Union Pacific stockholders to one share of Southern Pacific for each four shares of Union Pacific now held.

London Copper Warrants Toboggan.

Another slump in the quotations for G. M. B. copper occurred in the London market at the opening, spot shaking £1 and futures selling 17s. 6d. lower. Spot opened at £63 17s. 6d. and futures at £65.

Electrolytic was offered in New York yesterday at 15½ cents cash a pound, and there is a new low price for the present downward movement. The offerings were small and for March and April delivery. This price was just one cent a pound lower than the rate asked by the United Metals Selling Company. Confusing prevails in the copper metal market. This is demonstrated by the fact that one selling agency has its own price and fixes it according to its need to make sales.

It is reported that domestic consumers are still waiting for the price to touch bottom before stocking up to any extent.

Financial News in Brief.

The Bank of England's rate of discount remained unchanged today at 5 per cent. The proportion of the bank's reserve to liabilities is now 47 per cent, against 47 per cent. last week, and 47 per cent. a year ago, with an advance from 47 per cent. to 53 per cent. in the corresponding week last year.

The controller of the currency has issued a call for the condition of national banks at the close of business on February 4.

Boston Stock Exchange governors have voted to close it on Wednesday next, which is Lincoln's Birthday.

General Chemical Company reports net profits of $2,068,582 for the year ended December 31, 1912. The surplus was $4,747,098.

The American Writing Paper Company reports for the year ended December 31, 1912, net earnings of $1,480,762, an increase of $870,000 surplus, $95,947, an increase of $81,888.

Pennsylvania crude oil is now quoted at the highest price in twenty years.

The New York American says: "The sensational rise in crude oil has so unsettled the market for the securities of oil companies that a number of brokers announced today that such securities would no longer be carried on margin, which virtually places all transactions in them on a cash basis."

It is thought by some observers of trade conditions that the unfilled tonnage statement of the United States Steel Corporation for January will show a decrease of from 500,000 to 700,000 tons. There was a 75,000 tons increase in December last. It is said that steel companies have so many orders on their books they have not been aggressively seeking business lately.

Bank Commissioner Thorndike has issued a call for the condition of Massachusetts trust companies at the close of business on Tuesday last.

Heidelbach, Ickelheimer & Co. announce that they will ship $500,000 more in gold coin to South America on Saturday. This brings the total for their shipments on that day up to $1,100,000.

The New York sub-treasury gained $1,278,000 from the banks yesterday and since Friday has gained $5,528,000.

Frank Trumbull has been elected a director of Union Pacific to succeed Julius Kruttschnitt, and William Averell Harriman has been elected a director to succeed H. W. DeForest.

TODAY'S LATE CABLE NEWS

Melba and Kubelik Will Tour America.

LONDON—Schultz, Curtiss & Powell, London concert directors, today gave details of the tour they have arranged in America of what is said to be the most remarkable concert aggregation ever presented in any country. The combination consists of Mme. Melba, Jan Kubelik, Edmund Burke, the baritone of the Covent Garden Opera; Lapierre, the French pianist, and Marcel Noyes, the celebrated French flutist. The tour will commence Oct. 1, and will continue until April 1, 1914.

China to Buy 1,000 Airships.

PARIS—China's ambition to become the real "air power" in the Orient was revealed here today when it became known that the Chinese government had commissioned a French lieutenant of infantry to organize an aviation corps. China is preparing to purchase 270 aeroplanes and dirigible balloons during 1913, and 730 more in 1914, 1915 and 1916.

Mr. Van Alen Coming Back

LONDON—James J. Van Alen, who said he is returning to America, has disposed of Rushton Hall, one of the finest mansions in Northamptonshire, which he had on a long lease, to a South African man of wealth.

Hertford Weds Widow in March.

LONDON—The Marquis of Hertford, formerly husband of Miss Alice Thaw, will next month marry that rich, elderly widow, Mrs. Masscoekie, according to information received at the American Bureau.

DON'T STAY GRAY! SAGE TEA WILL DARKEN YOUR HAIR BEAUTIFULLY

A Mixture of Sage and Sulphur Prevents Dandruff and Falling Hair.

When you darken your hair with Sage Tea and Sulphur no one can tell, because it's done so naturally; so evenly. It is also splendid to remove dandruff, cure itching scalp and stop falling hair.

Preparing this mixture, though, at home is a messy and troublesome task. For about 50 cents a bottle you can buy at any drug store the ready-to-use tonic called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy." Some druggists put this mixture in themselves but make it too sticky, so insist you want "Wyeth's" then there will be no disappointment.

You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur" and draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. Do this at night and by morning all gray hair disappears and after a shorter application of two becomes beautifully darkened and more glossy and luxuriant than ever. You will also discover dandruff is gone and hair has stopped falling.

Gray, faded hair, though no disgrace, is a sign of old age and, as we all desire a youthful and attractive appearance, get busy at once with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur, and you'll look years younger. Inquiry shows all pharmacists in city here sell lots of it.

B. & A. SERVICE IS DEPLORABLE, SAYS MATTHEWS

Representatives of the Boston Chamber of Commerce, the United Improvement Association, ex-Mayor Nathan Matthews and a number of members of the Legislature and other prominent citizens argued before the Legislative Committee on Railroads today for a bill to compel all steam-railroad companies running into Boston to electrify their lines within the confines of the metropolitan district in six years. The bill is on the petition of Representative Channing Cox of Ward 10, Boston.

Ex-Mayor Matthews, the first speaker, reviewed the electrification of steam roads in Europe and of the New Haven road from New York to Stamford. During his argument he attacked the Boston & Albany and New York Central roads, declaring that the service given by the Boston & Albany was "deplorable" and that the officials of that road would not spend a single dollar for improvements in the public interest unless they were absolutely compelled to do so. He said that the New Haven is to electrify its entire line from New York to Boston. He said:

In Boston the disadvantages of operating by steam are greater than in any other city of the world, owing to the vast net-work of tracks running through the residential district. It costs less per mile of track to operate by electricity than by steam. The Boston & Albany has never shown the least desire to electrify, though it is the chief offender and it would cost less to electrify it than it would the other roads. The New Haven has always expressed a desire to electrify and is now engaged in doing it. The Boston & Albany lease was obtained by promises to build up Boston's export trade; it was a bunco game.

CURLEY URGES TAFT TO VETO THE IMMIGRATION BILL

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—President Taft was asked today to veto the Burnett-Dillingham immigration bill providing an illiteracy test, on the ground that it will keep from the United States many immigrants that the country needs. More than a hundred representatives of foreign societies appeared at the White House and argued against the measure, while representatives of labor favored it.

Frank Morrison of the American Federation of Labor defended the bill, while Representative Curley of Massachusetts took charge of those opposing it. A petition containing 300,000 names and protesting against the bill was presented in behalf of the Italian and Jewish societies of New York, Boston and Chicago.

Darning Socks Makes You Old; Vote, Urges Mrs. Glendower Evans

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—That darning socks makes women "look older and feel older," while the right to vote will renew their youth, was the declaration of Mrs. Elizabeth Glendower Evans of Boston, in a lecture on woman suffrage at the public library.

"I used to darn socks when I was younger," said Mrs. Evans, "thinking that it was a good method of passing the time. I find that it made me look older and feel older, as the labor did not have the proper element of interest. Working to better social conditions through the medium of the ballot will make age come rapidly."

Don't Forget--Among Other Things--That Plentiful Gold Helps to Make Living Expensive

The More Gold Produced, the Less a Dollar Is Worth. The Less a Dollar Is Worth, the Less a Man Can HAVE On $2 a Day.

Copyright, 1913, by American-Journal-Examiner

When there was talk—extremely foolish talk—about making 16 ounces of silver as valuable as one ounce of gold, the 16 to 1 theory, it was very properly said that over-production of silver, would make the dollar worth less and less, and cause great confusion, reducing the value of the payment for a day's wages.

The silver problem was solved by demonetizing silver, and now an ounce of silver is worth whatever it will bring. A silver dollar is worth a dollar, just as the copper cent is worth a cent, only because it has the government stamp on it.

What was feared, had "16 to 1" prevailed, and what would have happened on a tremendous scale in the over-production of silver has been happening slowly and gradually in connection with gold itself.

The dollar, which is the basis of all our transactions, AND WHICH IS THE BASIS OF THE AMOUNT WE PAY A MAN FOR A DAY'S LABOR—is so many grains of gold of a certain fineness.

If you take a lump of gold weighing ten pounds to the United States Treasury, they will make sure that it really is gold, and then they will hand you without question United States money equal in value to the value of that gold.

You don't need to be told that if somebody was suddenly to discover a mountain of gold, and begin pouring it into the Treasury, values would go to pieces, a dollar would be worth little or nothing, banks would be in a panic, and suddenly the nations of the world would be compelled to change their monetary system.

Fortunately, through the centuries, the supply of gold seems to have about kept pace with the necessities of the human race.

You know, perhaps, that men have spent on getting gold out of the ground actually more money than they have got out—that is to say, all the digging and mining has cost the human race more than the total value of the gold extracted.

But the gold has been produced about as fast as men needed it to use in trade, in commerce, in payment of wages. The increase has never been so violent as to frighten the world, or to make it necessary to give up gold as the standard.

Gold was hit upon, because rust does not affect it and because it lasts a long time—indefinitely, if it is not worn away by friction. It was selected because there was just about enough of it, and because it was very pretty.

Before gold was used, men used other things, cattle and hides, for instance—from that we get pecuniary, which comes from the Latin word "pecus," cattle. Savage islanders still use certain shells, washed up on the shore. The King of the island controls the shells, and sometimes a big storm makes him very rich or very poor all of a sudden.

We come back to gold and the increased cost of living.

The gold supply HAS BEEN INCREASING VERY LARGELY.

Ores that once were utterly useless are now worked, and we get out the gold by sulphide process, if we can get only a dollar out of a ton, or even less. New fields of gold in Africa, in Alaska, in many other parts of the world, have been opened up, and the miners, struggling desperately and eagerly, working for the possibility of finding a good mine, as they would not work for any other kind of a CERTAINTY, have been increasing the supply.

Gold is more plentiful AND WAGES STAY ABOUT THE SAME. We refer not chiefly to the mechanic's wages—the mechanic through his union has had intelligence enough to increase his pay to some extent at least. The chief sufferer is the respectable little gentleman with the silk top hat and the coat with silk facing, who marches in the prosperity parade, denounces as anarchistic any real effort to do him any good, and tries to live on his same small salary.

He is getting now just about the same number of grains of gold for a week's work as he got years ago, but the price of a silk hat and of food, the cost of rent, the price of everything, has increased, thanks to the fact that there is MORE gold, and it is spent more plentifully.

What is to be done about it is hard to say.

But it is quite certain that those that discuss the high cost of living must take into consideration THE GREATER PRODUCTION OF GOLD.

Great Features You Get Only with the Sunday American

Twelve Full Pages of Articles Profusely Illustrated, on the Important and Most Fascinating Subjects of Timely Interest

UNLESS you read the Sunday AMERICAN, you miss some of the greatest stories, some of the most interesting and important articles of timely interest prepared for your Sunday reading.

Everybody is interested these days in what society is doing in regard to the turkey trot. First one leader opposes it, then another finds it a dance of poetic beauty, and all that. Mrs. Vhil Lydig has now started everybody with a NEW set of rules for the conduct of guests at her parties.

There is a NEW RUSSIAN DANCER rising above the horizon into stardom, and SOME people think she has eclipsed the fame of Pavlowa and Ida Rubinstein. There are some striking pictures and something novel, her printed in colors in the magazine section for next Sunday.

WHAT will happen if we dam the GULF STREAM? Prof. Garrett P. Servis discusses the startling changes in climate which are sure to come about right here in NEW ENGLAND if the gigantic plan is ever put into effect.

Mme. Gatti-Casazza—or perhaps you know her as Mme. Alda, has some new ideas concerning the preservation of beauty. She has a new combination of milk baths and mud baths and all that, and some original ideas that will be interesting to every woman whose beauty is still her worry.

In these days of exposure of underworld secrets no more startling series of articles has been published than those by Jack Hose. In the two-page article in next Sunday's AMERICAN he tells how traps are baited with wicked ingenuity to catch bank clerks, cashiers, treasurers and unsuspecting business men and lure them to ruin and suicide.

Will Martin next invent a WOMAN silencer? Mme. Emma Trentini discusses the possibility in a light and entertaining vein, and incidentally suggests that SOME women OUGHT to be silenced. YOU should read her story by all means.

Why a business man who DIES at fifty is a FAILURE is discussed by an eminent doctor. A good many men who HAVE died RICH at fifty thought they were quite successful. Dr. Eugene Christian says it would be better to be BROKE AND HEALTHY at ninety and tells us HOW we may be both broke and ninety if we wish, in the Sunday AMERICAN'S page of "New Things Not Found in Any Books."

Lady Duff Gordon's article this week concerns her at home costumes, the Paris craze for beads and sequins and the concealed train, while Mme. Lina Cavalieri considers "the American Blemish."

There are OTHER articles in the Sunday AMERICAN'S unexcelled magazine section, but the few mentioned above may give you an idea of SOME of the interesting articles being prepared for YOUR BENEFIT, exclusively in next Sunday's AMERICAN.

LETTERS FROM AMERICAN READERS

THE NEED OF THE INDIVIDUAL

Editor Boston AMERICAN:

Dear Sir—In discussing our economic problems, we make the mistake of speaking of them in a way that has no individual application in line with our life's experience. We speak of balance of trade, the value of our corn crop and beautifully long of the billions of dollars our crops are worth, at the same time ignoring the great financial importance of the individual whose financial strength is measured in wages of less than two dollars.

What we call success in life is measured by the financial fitness of the few. We expect certain ones to progress financially, but there appears to be a dividing line, where no financial advancement is expected.

The coal miner, farm laborer, in fact all manual laborers are practically expected to stand still, in as far as wages are concerned, while judges, officials of the government and many other kinds of salaried labor are expected to advance as a matter of course.

BRITAIN AND THE CANAL

Editor Boston AMERICAN:

Dear Sir—In regard to the Panama Canal dispute, we, the people of "the United States," are descendants of the people who fought so hard to make this a free country, and immediately after we pay for and complete a canal, which is the most wonderful piece of work ever accomplished, England steps in and tries to dictate to us as to what and how we should tax their vessels. England ought to be and will be taxed as we see fit, or else she cannot use the canal.

DON'T TAKE CHANCES AND GET MARRIED ON IMPULSE.

DOROTHY DIX SAYS:

A young girl is apt to mistake infatuation for love, and by an early engagement cheat herself out of the happiest years of her life. Men and women are more apt to run straight after marriage if they've had their share of society before marriage.

By DOROTHY DIX

THE one subject on which a girl and her parents will never agree is, when is the love time of life. In the girl's opinion the psychological moment arrives whenever some good-looking youth, with a winning way with him, puts in an appearance on the scene.

On the other hand, the parents contend that a maiden should not think of love and marriage until she has prepared herself for the responsibilities they entail, and that there is no hurry about getting married, anyway, because when you are married you are generally married a very long time.

A father who is arguing with his daughter this eternal problem that comes up between every girl and her parents asks this question:

"Don't you think that the average girl of nineteen or twenty is very apt to mistake infatuation for love, and that to become engaged at that age would be cheating herself out of the happiest years of her life? Do you not think that her judgment in choosing a husband would be much less apt to be wrong if she would wait until she was twenty-four or twenty-five years old?"

I am no believer in early marriages. I think that if no woman married before she was twenty-five, and no man before he was thirty, it would materially reduce the amount of domestic misery in the world.

Immature Taste in Choosing a Great Risk

There are enough risks in matrimony anyway without taking any chances on what you are going to be yourself, and the kind of a wife or a husband you are going to want when you come to maturity. And that's what people do who marry before their tastes have ripened.

The girl that fired a man's fancy when he was twenty-one or two, he wouldn't look at a second time when he is thirty. The youth that set a girl's pulses a-flutter at nineteen puts her to yawning when she is twenty-five. There is no experience in life more disillusioning than to meet a lost love after five years of absence.

Ninety-nine times out of a hundred when you see a conspicuously mismated couple you will find out that they were married when they were very young, and one of the twain has gone on growing and developing, while the other has stood stock still, just what he or she was when the immature judgment of the other one picked him or her out for husband or wife.

I have also been interested in noting this other fact—that in almost every case of marital infidelity the one with the roving fancy married while he or she was very young, and before he or she knew anything of the fascinations of women or men. A man, for instance, marries when he is twenty or twenty-one the first girl he has ever really noticed. He knows nothing of women's wiles, or their tricks and their manners, and in the great majority of cases at middle-age he becomes an easy mark for any adventuress that happens along.

A girl fancies herself in love with the first man that makes love to her and marries him. Few husbands continue love-making after marriage, and when she finds out that marriage is mostly prose, instead of poetry, she is very apt to go back and hunt up the apple of which she had only taken a single bite, and which is now the forbidden fruit of romance to her.

Men and Women Should Have Social Fling Before Marriage

I once knew a very flighty married woman whose conduct was excused by an old family servant in these words: "You see, Miss Mary married when she wasn't anything but a child, and she missed her gal time, and a woman has got to have her gal time. If she don't get it when she's young, she takes it when she's old."

I think this is true, and that both men and women are much more apt to run straight after marriage if they've had their fling before marriage. There are no such domestic husbands and wives as those who are satiated with society, with flirtations, and dancing and theatres, and who, having had their pick of many other men and women, have chosen the one face that they want to see continuously on the opposite side of the hearthstone.

A girl, then, in my opinion, has a much better chance of being happy when married if she waits until she is twenty-four or five years old before she weds, because she is then mature, with settled taste, and knows the kind of a husband she really needs and wants. Also because she is ready to settle down and make a home, instead of wanting to be forever gadding about to places of amusement, and feeling herself ill-used because she is tied down to husband, home and children.

Certainly, too, the girl who rushes from the schoolroom into matrimony cuts herself out of her playtime for life. No matter how well a woman marries, nor how kind and good her husband is, marriage is no picnic. It is a state of serious responsibilities, and grave duties, and no married woman can ever be carefree as a girl is.

Those who favor early marriages talk beautiful poetic nonsense about a young couple growing up and developing together, but this is foolish talk. It is an accident, a miracle, when it happens, just as much as if you should plant an oak and a rose together and they should both attain the same size and strength.

Very Young People Are Opinionated and Selfish

As a matter of fact, very young people are always selfish, always intent on their own way, always opinionated, and they quarrel because they lack the experience, the knowledge of life, and the self-control to get along together. It takes age to teach us tact in handling other people, and patience and forbearance toward them, and that is another reason why people who marry later in life stand a better chance for peace and happiness.

Undoubtedly a girl of nineteen would be more apt to mistake infatuation for love than a woman of twenty-four, but, alas, neither age nor wisdom enables us to solve this problem, which is the crux of the whole domestic question. If we could distinguish infatuation from love there would be no more unhappy marriages, for misery only comes in at the door when infatuation flies out of the window, but love always stays close at the fireside.
